3 Killed, 5 Injured In Area Traffic Accidents

2 Die In Crash At Ashland

Rites Set For Mrs. Hostetler

The highest week-end death and injury toll in the Mansfield area in recent months was marked up Saturday and Sunday with three dead and five injured.

Meeting violent death on the area's highways were:

Mrs. Mabel Hostetler, 57, wife of Johnny Appleseed junior high school teacher, Harry Hostetler, 467½ South Main street.

Paul Sample, 51, East Eighth street, Ashland.

Russell Ritz, 41, Attica, R. D. 2.

Injured were:

Harry Hostetler, 59, 467½ South Main street.

Joseph Wychunas, 32, of Ashland.

Mrs. Norma E. Ritz, 42, Attica, R. D. 2.

Charles Mitchell, 64, of 139 North Weldon avenue.

Joseph Mitchell, 48, a brother, of 525 Summit street.

Mrs. Hostetler and Sample were pronounced dead on arrival at Ashland Samaritan hospital Saturday night after the two cars in which they were passengers collided on Nankin road at the northern edge of Ashland.

The Hostetler car, driven by Harry Hostetler, was reported to have collided head-on with a car driven by Wychunas. Ashland police said Wychunas was operating his car on the wrong side of the road. Sample was a passenger in the Wychunas car.

Hostetler was reported in "fair" condition at the Ashland hospital today where he is being treated for severe cuts of the knee and forehead.

SENT TO JAIL

Wychunas, appearing before Ashland police judge Harold Andrews jr., at 9:30 a. m. today, pleaded guilty to driving while intoxicated and was fined $100 and costs and lost his right to drive for three years. He also was given a 30-day sentence in Ashland county jail.

Charged also with second-degree manslaughter, Wychunas entered a plea of not guilty and was bound over to the grand jury without bond. The Ashland county grand jury will meet this month, officers said.

Meanwhile, funeral services for Mrs. Hostetler were set for 1:30 p. m. Tuesday at the Central Methodist church. Rev. J. Frank Stewart will officiate and burial will be in Mansfield Memorial Park.

Mrs. Hostetler was born Jan. 7, 1892 at Pandora and came to Mansfield in 1918. She was an ac-

Urges Probe On Acheson

WASHINGTON— (INS) —Sen. Butler (R) Neb. suggested today a public hearing on Dean Acheson's nomination as secretary of state to "clear up, once and for all" his past connection with Alger Hiss.

Acheson's nomination to succeed Secretary of State Marshall is expected to go to the Senate today. Chairman Connally (D) Tex., will call his foreign relations committee together tomorrow to organize but probably will not consider Acheson's nomination before Wednesday.

Overwhelming approval of the nomination, perhaps unanimous, is anticipated despite apparent sore feelings in GOP ranks on the whole question of bipartisan foreign policy.

Meanwhile, it was revealed that Acheson is pledged to fight for revision of the Senate's control over treaties and elimination of the "caste system" from American diplomacy.

'Queen' on Wheels Goes Into Service

CHICAGO —(AP)— The "Queen Mary," largest electric motor bus ever built, went into trial service here today.

The bus, which draw its power from overhead trolley wires, is 57 feet long, vertically hinged in the center for easy negotiation of cross-grade elevations, and has front and rear wheel steering. It carries 58 passengers.

Balmy Weather To End

Although the calendar said January Mansfielders enjoyed balmy, spring-like weather yesterday as temperatures reached an official high of 58 at 3 p. m., one of the highest ever recorded in Mansfield during January.

Many persons took advantage of the unseasonably warm weather to take lonk walks or drives in the country. Children played sidewalk games, and little tots were taken for an airing in baby carriages and strollers.

Some Mansfielders even considered it warm enough to go without coats. Men appeared in shirt sleeves to discuss the weather with their neighbors.

But the weatherman warned a cold wave is due to hit the state today.

Temperatures began to drop in Mansfield last night and a cold rain was falling on the city this morning. The official low at 10:30 a. m. was 34 degrees.

The official forecast is considerably colder today and tonight with sleet and freezing rain over the north portion and possibly some freezing rain in the south portion.

SNOW FORECAST

Tomorrow will be windy and colder with snow.

Yesterday's high temperatures equalled or broke records of Jan. 9 in many Ohio cities and towns. The high of 69 recorded in Columbus equalled the all-time record for that city.

Between 6,000 and 7,000 persons jammed the Columbus zoo for an all-time mid-winter mark and many families brought out the picnic hampers for picnics in state parks.

Geauga county residents, who for 75 years have complained each winter of the heavy snowfall, are complaining this winter for the lack of a white covering. According to longtime residents, the snowless weather has cut down on the tourist trade of people who trek in annually for the winter season.

A new storm bringing snow, sleet, wind and biting cold raged over the Rocky Mountain region today in the wake of a crippling blizzard which last week claimed 22 lives.

The latest storm was not as intensive as the blizzard which paralyzed transportation and caused untold damage but extended over a wider area.

Denver weather bureau forecasters said the cold wave covered most of Colorado, Utah, Wyoming, Montana, Nebraska, Kansas, western South Dakota, northern New Mexico and portions of Arizona and Nevada.

10,000 Watch Mock Bombing Of City Port

A crowd of approximately 10,000 persons jammed the Mansfield airport and surrounding roads yesterday afternoon to watch the practice air attack on the airfield.

Members of the state highway patrol were on hand to handle the traffic problems created by the large crowd.

Twenty-five F-51 fighters and two B-26 bombers from the Dayton and Columbus fighter squadrons took part in the "mock bombing."

Captain William O. Ash, commanding officer of the 164th Fighter Squadron, said the practice attack, which lasted approximately 10 minutes, went off as scheduled, and termed it a success.

Following the attack, several members of the air unit did air stunts for the crowd.

The big crowd expressed disappointment at the brevity of the "attack." Capt Ash explained that fighter planes were forced to remain at a high altitude, instead of coming in low ever the field, for the strafing attack. He said that yesterday's good flying weather encouraged so much flying by owners of private planes that the fighters were forced to remain at high altitudes to avoid flying hazards. The aerobatics also had to be performed at high altitudes, Ash said.

In addition to the air attack, the three F-51 fighters on display in front of the administration building at the airport attracted large numbers of interested spectators.

28 Nurses Given Caps

400 Witness Traditional Rite

Twenty-eight young girls last night accepted the symbol of the nursing profession and dedicated themselves in the famed Florence Nightingale pledge, to "Follow the Gleam" of service throughout their lives.

The 28 were "capped" by Miss Carrie Beal, supervisor of nurses at General hospital, after four months of preliminary training. The ceremony marks acceptance into the nurses school at General hospital.

The candle-lighted auditorium of the First Presbyterian church was filled with more than 400 parents and friends to hear Rev. David N. Roller speak on the theme, "The Touch of Human Hands."

"The Providence of God is nowhere more apparent than in the cool and kindly hand of a nurse consecrated to the service of nursing, who touches with her hand the stricken body of a patient and helps send him out a new person," Rev. Roller said in his talk.

As the names of the 28 were read by Mrs. Julia Raby, of the nursing staff at General hospital, each walked up to the chancel to receive a cap from Miss Beal and a candle from a "Big Sister." In addition, Miss Rachel Osbun president of the student council who welcomed the 1951 class, gave each a small white Testament,

Second Term Starts Today

Lausche Pledges No New Taxes For Ohio

(Compiled From Wire Services)

COLUMBUS—A specific pledge of no new taxes was voiced by Gov. Frank J. Lausche this afternoon as he took the oath of office for a second time.

Lausche, the man who came back after two years' absence from the governor's chair, promised:

"Without imposing new taxes and within the limitations of the moneys that are available, we shall endeavor to meet problems of our state so as to make certain that the greatest progress possible will be realized."

Democrat Lausche's inauguration was on the exact spot—the west steps of Ohio's state house—where he handed a commission as governor to Republican Thomas J. Herbert two years ago.

This time it was Herbert who presented the commission. Lausche scored an easy triumph over Herbert last November.

Lausche is the fourth Ohio governor to come back to the office after a brief respite. Allen Trimble, in the early 1820's was the first. Rutherford B. Hayes was second. Hayes served in 1868-1872 and returned in 1876 to serve until March 2, when he resigned to become president of the United States. James M. Cox was the third. He served three terms (1913-15 and 1917-21).

Visitors from all Ohio jammed Columbus for the ceremonies. Hotel rooms were at a premium and restaurants did a rushing business.

Also taking the oath of office today were State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson, Secretary of State Charles F. Sweeney, Attorney General Herbert S. Duffy, all Democrats, and Auditor Don M. Ebright, only elected Republican left among state house officials.

The 53-year-old Lausche took the oath of office from Chief Justice Carl V. Weygandt of Ohio, placing his left hand on a family Bible brought to Columbus last night by Mrs. Lausche.

Friends said the Lausches probably would move into the executive mansion later in the day. The Herberts moved out Saturday, spent the week-end in Cleveland, returned for the inauguration and then were to leave for a Florida vacation. Herbert will resume his Cleveland law practice in February.

Inauguration activities were to occupy the entire day, and started with a veterans' breakfast for Lausche. They will end with a ball in the Neil House.

After the veterans' breakfast, the Ohio State university band gave an hour-long concert. Playing "The Star Spangled Banner" marked the start of the swearing-in program.

Methodist Bishop H. Lester Smith of Columbus gave the invocation and Rev. Msgr. Herman E. Mattingly, of Columbus the benediction.

An afternoon reception followed in the governor's chambers where Lausche arranged to greet the party faithful and well-wishers. Mrs. Lausche will be honored at a women's reception later in the governor's mansion.

An evening inaugural buffet in the Deshler Wallick hotel and a stag press and radio smoker in the Seneca hotel will precede the inaugural ball.

Burglars Cause Vacation

Lexington School Closed After Theft

Students at Lexington High school received an unexpected holiday today as a result of a break-in that netted burglars about $150 last night.

The burglars smashed open the safe in the office of Superintendent H. L. Hofacre, according to Sheriff E. P. Long. They also broke into the school cafeteria and stole food from the refrigerator, the sheriff said.

The burglary was discovered by Ira Dill, the school janitor, early this morning. Entrance was gained by forcing a window. The glass in the door to the office was broken.

The money was obtained by breaking off the safe's combination with a railroad spike, Long said. Superintendent Hofacre said he called off classes today to give the sheriff's office a chance to investigate. Fingerprints were to be taken.

The school will be reopened tomorrow, the superintendent announced.

According to Sheriff Long the burglary was the work of professionals. It was accomplished between 6 p. m. yesterday and 6:30 a. m. today. After taking all the money they could find, the burglars forced open the door to the cafeteria, ate, and left.

None of the classrooms was broken into, and there was no damage to any of the rest of the school, Long stated. He pointed out that the crime did not indicate it was the work of vandals. It does appear that the burglars were familiar with the school because they evidently knew where the money was located and the kind of safe they had to deal with, Long said.

British Warships Poised

Russia Offers Israeli Support

TEL AVIV—(INS)—British warships and troops stood poised near the infant state of Israel today in a "show-the-flag" demonstration protesting the shooting down of five RAF planes by the Jews.

The Israeli cabinet, following a Tel Aviv meeting last night, was reported preparing to ask the United Nations Security council to regard Britain as a belligerent in the Palestine conflict.

Reports that Russia had entered the turbulent Holy Land picture by offering to support Israel were current in Tel Aviv. Informed sources said that Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Shertok told Soviet Minister Pavel Yershow that the situation was not sufficiently serious to warrant intervention by the USSR.

The military and naval situation in the middle east shaped up as follows following a flurry of troops and ship movements by the British: Two British frigates left Malta for the island of Cyprus, 160 miles northwest of Israel.

RECALL CARRIER

The Royal Navy at Malta also recalled an aircraft carrier from Tripoli and a cruiser from the Adriatic. One British destroyer sailed south from Cyprus for an undisclosed destination, while another put in at Famagusta on Cyprus.

The Royal Naval Transport Empire Test, was scheduled to leave Cyprus for Egypt this afternoon, but British officials said the movement of troops on and off the vessel was in no way connected with the Palestine situation.

Also on Cyprus, British marines stood by for possible removal to the Red Sea port of Aqaba in Trans-Jordan which stands astride Israel's border. Britain has already admitted the presence of marine units at Aqaba, reportedly sent there at Trans-Jordan's request.

Thus far, Israel has flatly refused to honor two British protests over the shooting down of the planes, on the grounds that the notes were addressed to the "Jewish authorities" instead of the state of Israel.

Ohio Cabinet Completed

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Three Republicans hold key jobs in Gov. Frank J. Lausche's cabinet. Two are holdovers from the Republican administration of outgoing Gov. Thomas J. Herbert. One is Lausche's own choice.

The two Herbert appointees — Public Works Director George B. Sowers of Cleveland and Health Director John D. Porterfield — have definite statutory terms. The third Republican, Finance Director H. D. Defenbacher, was re-appointed by Lausche.

Late yesterday, Lausche named Albert A. Woldman, Cleveland, as state industrial relations director. The governor-elect completed selection of his cabinet today by designating Major Gen. Leo M. Kreber of Columbus, commanding officer of the 37th division, as adjutant general.

Dr. Clyde Hissong, state education director, also is serving a definite statutory term of four years. It expires Aug. 15 this year.

Other Lausche selections for his cabinet are: Commerce Director — Robert J. Moulton of Galion; Agricultural Director — A. W. Marion of Rockford; Liquor — Oscar Fleckner of Springfield; Welfare — Common Pleas Judge John H. Lamneck of New Philadelphia, and Highways — Theodore J. Kauer of Cleveland.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—President Truman sent Congress today a $41,858,000,000 budget proposing the biggest spending and the most powerful military forces America "has ever maintained in peacetime."

Half the total is for "our international and national defense programs"—for the cold war with Russia.

And the cost may go even higher. Mr. Truman said so three times in a message itemizing what the administration wants to spend in the 1950 fiscal year starting July 1.

But he didn't give an inch in his demands for his vast social and economic program—such things as more housing and schooling, bigger social security benefits, tools to combat inflation. The budget covers some of these items, too.

Mr. Truman called for boosting social security taxes, for old and new programs, by nearly $2,000,000,000. That is besides the $4,000,000,000 in extra corporation and individual income taxes he asked for once again.

And while the chief executive said his budget emphasizes air power for defense, it rejected Congress's idea of a 7-group air-force. Mr. Truman said in a separate statement that number and size of planes rather than number of groups is a better gauge of air force strength.

The President outlined the government's financial prospects to a Congress which had gasped at advance reports the budget would hit a new peacetime peak. And it did just that.

IN THE RED

It is $1,678,000,000 over the previous spending record set this year. It is $873,000,000 bigger than the government's prospective income of $40,985,000,000 in the year ahead. It figures out to $282.82 apiece for every American.

Yet it doesn't even take into account plans for providing military supplies for western Europe and "certain other" unnamed countries. Mr. Truman said he would ask for money for that "later."

He said, too, that:

"It must be recognized that expenditures in the fiscal year 1951 are likely to be larger than those for 1950. Expenditures for national defense can be expected to rise substantially above the level estimated for 1950.

"We cannot expect any mate-

See Early Action On Radar Plan

WASHINGTON —(UP)— Rep. Carl Vinson, (D.-Ga.) predicted prompt congressional action today on an air force plan to set up a countrywide radar warning system.

Vinson, who will head the House Armed Services committee, said he will call for early consideration of his bill to authorize building of the radar network. He made it plain that he considers the measure of prime importance and that he intends to press for favorable action.

Absence of a radar warning system was cited by Air Secretary W. Stuart Symington in his first annual report yesterday as a major gap in U. S. defenses.

The bill which Vinson introduced last week would establish enough radar stations to spot a plane as soon as it crossed any part of the nation's borders. The aircraft's presence would then be relayed to central points for a check against known flights. In this way it would be possible to pick out any unidentified plane quickly.

Experts estimate that an adequate defense system, to be built over a five-year period, would cost about $160,000,000.

Other congressional developments:

Rent controls—Chairman Brent Spence (D.-Ky.) of the House Banking committee said his group will give "full consideration" to a new bill to extend rent controls for 27 months. Drafted with the aid of rent control officials, the bill also would subject "gouging" landlords to heavy fines and possible jail terms.

The present rent control law runs out March 31.

Health insurance — Two congressmen jumped into the battle over President Truman's compulsory health insurance program. Rep. Clarence Brown (R.-O.) said he would be willing to consider a government sponsored health insurance plan, provided membership were on a voluntary basis. But Sen. James E. Murray (D.-Mont.) claimed that voluntary health plans cost too much and are too limited.

Death Strikes Twice

ASHLAND, Ky.—(AP)—William J McKinney of Lebanon, O., 74, died in his hotel room here yesterday. His wife, Anna, 70, died in Lebanon shortly after learning of his death.

It's $282 Per Person

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Your share in the cost of government, as proposed by President Truman, averages out to $282.82 for the 12 months beginning next July 1, compared with $271.04 for the preceding 12 months.

Based on an estimated population of 148,000,000, that is the cost for every living American—man, woman and child—of the government's operations at home and abroad, as reflected in the President's budget message today.

The comparative cost in the year ended June 30, 1941, the last full fiscal year before Pearl Harbor, was $101.14. The population then was only 132,350,000.

House Spy Hunters Defended for Their Headline-Seeking Actions

IT IS TRUE that the House committee on un-American activities lets its publicity get out of control at times. Such excesses offend some citizens, most of all those who have been embarrassed, disgraced and/or incriminated by its noisy disclosures. All statesmen, even including some members of the committee, agree that there is a strong tendency to spruce up, to shake back noble manes and scowl or smile, as the individual preference may be, when movies are about to be taken of dramatic moments in proceedings.

When the committee was setting the stage, as it were, for the "hostile" Hollywood political trash a little more than a year ago, one of the members did me the honor of consulting me as an authority on public relations, or perhaps popular psychology. I advised him to bar the movie newsreels, radio and loudspeakers absolutely.

They were thinking of calling Charlie Chaplin and I warned my friend that he might make monkeys of them by walking onto the set in his low-comedy pants, hat and cane. That worried them and they decided to put him in deep freeze.

I think that if the committee were to call Chaplin now and he tried to get funny he would die the death of a dog because psychology has swung to the committee.

After the Hollywood show was done, my friend was a little apologetic. He said some of the brothers desired the maximum publicity in order that the alarm should be sounded to the greatest number of citizens through all the channels of propaganda.

That is a valid excuse. Why not? And the fact that the statesmen are human and, furthermore, are politicians and thus require publicity to get re-elected is supererogation—I think.

This appetite is a part of the apparatus of vanity. Even mirrors are organs of publicity and there is this to be said for the female race—if little more—that they are unblushing and honest about their vanity whereas the bucks pretend to have none of it.

However, even craggy, ugly brutes who know they clabber milk and frighten bulldogs are reeking of it and John L. Lewis has exploited his ugliness with a vanity as active and apparent as Grable's.

Mr. Truman is a creation of publicity. He made his through his Senate committee which investigated graft and waste in war expenditures. But for that he would not have been nominated for vice president in 1944.

It is ironic to find us journalists decrying the appetite for publicity evinced by members of the committee on un-American activities. Every reporter aspires to his by-line so that the reader in the bus who is whipping over to the funnies or the sport page as fast as he can, may know that he was the author of the living human document which starts on Page One and, after 30 lines, jumps back to page 12 where the by-line is dropped. Vanity. Publicity. Columnists, too.

I hate publicity but I enjoy writing a column, but I wouldn't enjoy it if it didn't have my name over it but sometimes I peer down my nose at the boy on the committee for knocking over chairs in the scuffle as the lights flicker on and the cameras start to run.

This love of publicity is so common that we in the papers should know better than to belittle the real public service of the committee on un-American activities, merely to criticize the statesmen for their avidity.

Area Appeals Court to Get Four Cases

Session to Open Tuesday In County

Four cases will be heard by the Fifth District Court of Appeals when it meets here tomorrow.

Presiding judges will be Robert B. Putnam, Charles W. Montgomery and C. B. McClintock.

The first case, to be heard at 9 a. m., involves a dispute over ownership of real estate. S. O. Darling claims to have bought a lot from Mrs. Della L. Uhler and to have paid part of the purchase price to the owner directly and the remainder to her real estate agent.

The agent retained part of the payment, alleging Mrs. Uhler owed that part. The defendant refused to give the purchaser, Darling, a deed to the property, on grounds that the agreed purchase price was not paid to her. She is appealing the decision of Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch enjoining her to grant the deed.

Also on the docket is a case brought by Mary E. Sargent against Delton B. Sargent, involving a division of property in a divorce action. The plaintiff was granted a divorce and property held by both parties in March.

The defendant filed a cross-petition charging neglect and cruelty but judgment was rendered against him. He is appealing the divorce granted in Common Pleas court.

In another case, George S. Brightbill, doing business as the Home Realty company, against Woodrow Wilson, Lexington, the defendant is appealing a judgment for $175 against him. The real estate firm won a judgment, alleging he refused to pay a brokerage commission after he refused to sell his property when the firm found a buyer.

The fourth case is brought by Ivan J. Dick and Ray Dick, seeking exceptions in the account of Allen J. Dick, deceased. The accounts were determined by the Richland county probate court.

C of C Cites Ticket Sales

Seventy-five tickets are still available for the 37th annual dinner meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Friday at the Coliseum, Paul M. Eliot, chairman of ticket sales announced today.

The tickets will be on sale at the Tawse Pharmacy this evening and at the Chamber of Commerce tomorrow morning. Deadline for purchasing tickets and for turning back tickets already purchased is 10 a. m. tomorrow.

Eliot said the 75 tickets left are the balance of 125 put on sale yesterday plus those turned back. Nearly 1,800 tickets already have been sold for the annual dinner.

Speeder Held In Auto Theft

A "speeder", apprehended on Ashland road last night by state highway patrolmen, was turned over to Cleveland authorities today after he was found driving a car stolen in Cleveland on Dec. 18.

State highway patrolmen identified the mototist as Earl Lee Franklin, 23, of Cleveland. Patrolmen said the car Franklin was driving was stolen near the Cleveland Clinic hospital.

Held in city jail during the night, Franklin was turned over to Cleveland authorities today for prosecution in connection with the car theft.

Attend State Fair Session

County Group To Go to Columbus

Tom Sheppard, of Jackson township, will attend the annual meeting Wednesday and Thursday in Columbus of the Ohio Fair Managers' association as a delegate of the Richland county fair board.

Two alternates who are going are L. L. Rinehart, of Sandusky township, chairman of the fair board, and Clarence Tugend, treasurer.

Fair board members who will attend the banquet Thursday night are Arthur Mellick, Charles Oberlin, Herman Matthes, Orville Kibler and Herman Wolf.

The Thursday morning session will include a joint meeting of the Ohio Department of Agriculture and the Ohio Fair Managers' association.

A panel discussion on "The County Fair and the Public" will be directed by Robert E. Minshall, secretary-treasurer of R. B. Howard and Associates, Inc., public relations consultants.

A feature of the convention will be the best 1948 fair contest, when 25 Ohio fairs compete for the coveted trophy presented by former Governor Myers Y. Cooper.

Speakers for Thursday night's banquet will include Gov. Frank J. Lausche, guest of honor; Bill Veeck, president of the Cleveland Indians; T. Russ Hill, of Detroit, nationally known business leader, and Milton Newcomb, philosopher and humorist.

Divorce, $20,000 Judgment Noted

A divorce has been granted and a judgment for $20,000 to Ann Hughes Chamay, of Malabar farm from Cesar Chamay, of Paris, records in the Clerk of Courts office revealed today.

Mrs. Chamay was awarded the custody of two children and $300 a month alimony. The judgment was made in favor of the plaintiff on grounds of neglect.

The Chamays were married in Paris July 10, 1934. During the past eight years, the plaintiff charged, her husband contributed nothing to her or her children's support.

Petition for the divorce was filed July 14, 1948.

Death Claims Young Mother

Mrs. Juadine Irene Oakes, 30, wife of Raymond H. Oakes, 127½ Hedges street, died Sunday morning at General hospital, of complications following child-birth.

Mrs. Oakes gave birth to a daughter on Thursday, Dec. 30.

She was born Nov. 25, 1918 in Crawford county, coming to Mansfield last March. Mrs. Oakes was a member of the United Brethren church at Leesville.

Surviving, besides her husband an employe of the News-Journal classified advertising department, are an infant daughter, Dianne Kay, three brothers, Elwin and Robert Ashcroft of Galion and Halden Ashcroft of Crestline; and one sister, Mrs. Ray VanAusdale of Galion.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Wappner funeral home at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday by Rev. John G. Gensel, pastor of the St.Paul Lutheran church. Burial will be in the Fairview cemetery in Galion.

Sports Editor To Address Club

Franklin Lewis, sports editor and columnist of the Cleveland Press, will come to Mansfield on Wednesday to speak to members of the Men's club of the B'Nai Jacob congregation.

Lewis will tell of the Rose bowl game and the coaches' convention, both of which he recently attended on the west coast. The meeting wil be held in the B'Nai Jacob Temple, 50 Sturges avenue, with Leo Budin, president of the club, in charge. Refreshments will be served following Lewiss talk.

Ohio Twins Baffle Army, Girl Friends

BERLIN—(AP)—A couple of identical twins are making things tough for top sergeants around the 279th Station hospital.

Pfc. K. M. (Kenneth) Bricker and Pfc. K. M. (Karl) Bricker, 22, of Newcomerstown, O., enjoy the whole thing.

"We really louse those guys up," says Kenneth. "Half the time they don't know whether we are coming or going."

"Yeah," Karl grinned. "We give those characters a bad time—but strictly."

The Bricker twins, top-flight forwards on the U. S. hospital basketball team, both have the same Army jobs in the same hospital—ward attendants.

They look so much alike they have been known to give some of the weaker patients a turn when they enter a room together.

Both boys entered the Army at Cleveland and arrived here in 1946. Shortly afterward they were assigned to the big 279th station hospital. They had played basketball together in high school and they make a good combination.

"Our coach gets a little confused now and then," Kenneth reported. "If we change shirts he thinks one guy is the other."

"Uh huh," said Karl. "But it was worst about the girls."

It seems that when Kenneth squired a girl she frequently would greet Kirl with glad cries of affection the next day. Same thing with Karl.

"Now we got steady girls," they said. "It makes it easier." Just how the twin problem is solved this way he did not explain.

Perhaps the twins' biggest single triumph occurred when a number of prisoners were housed in the hospital. The Brickers were assigned to guard them. During the night some of the men escaped. It came to a question as to which Bricker had been lax and which post he was guarding.

The twins didn't talk.

TWINS "FORGET"

"Result? A harried officer dismissed the whole thing—he had learned the same lesson vexed sergeants had learned in camp.

"I dunno who was to blame," Kenneth says. "I forgot which of us it was."

"Me too," Karl said.

The twins are five feet nine inches tall, wear identical glasses, have identical moustaches, walk alike and talk alike. They live in the same barracks and sleep side by side. Karl is getting a little heavier than their usual weight—160 pounds, and Kenneth plans to catch up on his vitamins.

"We got to keep 'em guessing" Cpl. Donald W. (Shorty) Beward of Cleveland, Ohio, another ward attendant, says he is baffled.

"Look," he said, "those two guys looks so much alike that sometimes they have a tough time telling each other apart."

E. B. Groff Dies at 64

Emerson B. Groff, 64, died unexpectedly Sunday morning at his home, 1754 Ashland road. Death followed a heart attack.

Mr. Groff was born Oct. 4, 1884 at Pavonia and had spent his entire life in this community. He was an active member of the Grace Gospel church.

At one time, Mr. Groff operated a grocery in the Third Street Market.

Surviving are his wife, Mary Spayde Groff; one son, Richard C. Groff of Mansfield; two brothers, Willard of Pavonia and Robert of Ashland, R. D.; one sister, Mrs. E. M. Miller of Pavonia, and two grandchildren.

The body is at the Wappner Funeral home where services will be held at 3 p. m. Wednesday, in charge of Rev. James E. Davey, pastor of the Grace Gospel church. Burial will be in the Chestnut Grove cemetery in Ashland county.

Ralph Schauweker Taken By Death

Ralph Schauwker, 58, of 68 North Adams street, died last night at the Peoples' hospital after several months illness.

Born in Loudonville, Sept. 25, 1890, he became a resident of Mansfield four years ago. He had been employed by the Ohio Brass company until his illness forced him to retire.

Mr. Schauweker is survived by his wife, Lucille McMullen Schauweker; a son, Richard of Narberth, Pa.; and two grandchildren. The body is at the Wappner funeral home, pending completion of funeral arrangements.

CONCERT GUEST—

When Frank Guerrara sings with the Mastersingers on Jan. 17 and 18, one of the most interested spectators will be Mrs. Marshall Heinbaugh, whose husband was soloist for the chorus last June. Mrs. Heinbaugh was unable to be here to hear the joint program presented by her husband and the Mastersingers, so she decided to come for the January concert. She will be the guest of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Dickey of Lexington. Mrs. Heinbaugh will come to Lexington from Cleveland where she is visiting her mother, Mrs. A. P. Dickey.

Pocket Blast Puzzles Akron Investigators

AKRON, — (INS) — A "pocket explosion" which sent two men and two women to the hospital Saturday still was a mystery to Akron police today.

Deputy Sheriff Sherman Gandee said the "mystery blast" apparently took place in the pocket of a man he identified as Samuel Feller, 52, of Akron.

Feller, from his hospital bed, denied carrying any explosive in his pocket, Gandee said.

Man, 65, Falls Into Creek

John G. Rowlander, 65, of Crestline, was admitted to General hospital at 1:30 a. m, today after police found him calling for help from Touby's run, near the Erie railroad tracks between Walnut and Main streets.

Francis Fitzgerald, Erie railroad tower attendant, called police when he heard Rowlander's call. Police said Rowlander told them he was walking east on the railroad tracks when a freight train, also heading east, came down the tracks.

Rowlander said he thought he was nearer the railroad bridge and stepped off to the right, misjudging the distance. Police said Rowlander fell from the tracks, striking his head and rolling into the shallow stream.

Four Flee OSR In Stolen Car

One Captured In Delaware

Three of four Mansfield reformatory inmates who fled the farm dormitory last night were sought today in Delaware where the fourth member of the gang was captured last night while posing as an Ohio Wesleyan university student.

Found abandoned in Delaware was a black, 1947 Ford sedan, bearing license number WH 319, reported stolen from near the Coliseum last night.

Delaware police said they believed the OSR youths had stolen the car and used it for their escape which ended when a Waldo service station attendant notified state highway patrolmen that four men had ordered gas at his station and left without paying for the fuel. Waldo is 11 miles north of Delaware.

State highway patrolmen picked up the car's trail and chased the quartet into Delaware where the car was abandoned on a city street. Police said all four fled on foot through back yards. Roadblocks were thrown up on all highways leading from Delaware.

By 11:26 p. m. one of the gang, identified as Emerson Cain, 21, of Pickaway county, was in Delaware city jail, after being apprehended while mingling in a crowd of college students on the street. Police said they believed Cain attempted the ruse to escape identification. Prison clothes, however, quickly identified him, police said.

KEYS LEFT IN CAR

Mansfield police today said the abandoned car's description exactly fitted a car reported stolen last night. The auto is owned by Glenn W. Gleason of Butler. Gleason reported the stolen car at 9 p. m. and told police he had left the keys in the car when he parked it in front of the Coliseum.

Supt. Arthur L. Glattke of the reformatory, said the four were reported missing from the farm dormitory at 7:30 p. m. Escape, he said, was made by removing a window in the dormitory basement. A posse of guards deployed throughout the area failed to locate the youths.

The three fugitives, still at large today in the Delaware area were identified as Delmar Weaver, 21; Mike Hall, 29, and Carl Daniels, 21. Weaver was received on Feb. 6, 1948 from Pickaway county to serve one to seven years for grand larceny. Hall is serving a one to 25 year term for robbery in Hamilton county. He was received on April 16 last year. Daniels, convicted of auto theft in Stark county, began a one to 20 year sentence on May 11.

Father of 5 Doctors Dies

ASHLAND — Services were to be conducted today for Albert A. Shilling, 71, father of five doctors, who died Saturday at the home of a son, Dr. M. D. Shilling, 1002 Sandusky street, Ashland.

Mr. Shilling was a retired general store proprietor at Stanwood. Burial was to be at Stanwood.

Surviving Mr. Shilling are his widow, Grace; his five doctor sons, Dr. M. D. Shilling, Dr. R. L. Shilling, and Dr. M. A. Shilling of Ashland, Dr. A. V. Shilling of Fremont, and Dr. Robert Shilling of Los Angeles, Calif.; a daughter, Mrs. R. C. Valluzzo of Battle Creek, Mich., and 20 grandchildren.

Mr. Shilling, a native of Stanwood, had been in Ashland since November with his sons. He was an Ohio legislator for two terms, a member of the Stark county Board of Education and Board of Health, a director of the State Bank of Massillon, a member of the Massillon Masonic lodge, and a member of the Reformed church at Stanwood.

Hearing of Assault Cases Enters Third Day In City Court

With the municipal courtroom nearly filled with interested neighbors, the trial of the three members of the Gabriel family, 409 West Fifth street, charged with assault and battery, moved into its third day today.

The state rested Saturday in the cases against Edward Gabriel, his wife and their son, Richard. The charges against Edward and Richard Gabriel were brought by Stephen Leslie, 45 West Fifth street, and against Mrs. Gabriel by Mrs. Leslie.

On Friday, Richard Gabriel was found guilty of an assault and battery charge brought by Frank Piacent, Gabriel's next door neighbor, but sentencing was postponed until the other three charges are heard.

Edward Gabriel took the stand in his own defense today and admitted that on Dec. 24 he had struck Leslie with a snow shovel, but alleged that Leslie stabbed him in the finger with a knife.

In other cases Arnold Kellum jr, of Warren, was found guilty of unsafe operation, and was fined $15 and costs and lost his right to drive for 60 days. He was fined $10 and costs for speeding.

Fred Hogmire, 129 North Main street, was found guilty of an assault and battery charge brought by Edna Snipe. He was fined $10 and costs and was given a 30-day suspended jail sentence.

William W. and Virginia Henderson, of Portsmouth, were fined $10 and costs each for drunk and disorderly conduct.

William Henderson was arrested Saturday night after a fight at the Merry-Go-Round cafe, during which the juke box and several chairs and tables were broken.

While struggling with officers outside the cafe, a window was broken. His wife, Virginia, who protested his arrest was picked up at that time.

Seven Major College 5's Still Unbeaten

Today's Sport Parade

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK — (UP) — Ahoy, you landlubbers with the sitting room stomachs, there's good news today from the national motor boat show!

Do you, like old Cap'n Fearless, get queasy around the equator when the water gets too deep in the bath tub?

Does your midsection do back flips when you think of taking the local ferry on a calm day?

And do you lose your vim for victuals when you see a painting of Old Ironsides?

Well, worry no more. Now you can go to sea with all the aplomb of Captain Bligh at a yardarm necktie party. They've finally come up with a boat whose hull does the highlang fling while the cabin stands as steady as the rocks I've often prayed for after being shanghaied on a fishing party.

This undoubtedly, is the greatest development in boating since the invention of water.

AN 11-TON cabin cruiser, this phenomenal craft is named the Evans Gyro-Craft. Explained simply, the cabin is suspended by a cradle arrangement in the separate hull with a gyroscope to keep the cabin steady at all times. The hull moves through ripples and five-foot waves without spilling soup on the cabin table.

William Evans, retired manufacturer from Miami Beach, explained his brain child.

"Eighty per cent of the people get seasick," he said. "I am one of the 80 per cent. But I like to fish. You can't enjoy fishing when after 15 minutes you want to die. So this is the answer."

★

IT GETS MY vote over everything nautical at the show, although an enterprising marine paint firm came up with a dandy idea which gets its share of the notice. She's a trim little craft of about five feet, six inches with a nice hull decorated in spangles. The young lady is decked out as a mermaid and the visitor who comes closest to guessing the number of spangles gets a free paint job. Even is you lose, you win, as the sharks trailing her would tell you.

One innovation concerns outboard motors, which, after 40 years of strained arms and broken bulkheads, finally have come up with a gear shift. The gas on these is carried in a separate container with a rubber hose line that plugs in like a vacuum cleaner.

Dan Arena, the motor boat race driver who won the President's cup, was on hand waiting to find out about the Harmsworth trophy race. When Gar Wood won the cup the last time, Dan explained, he used 7,000 horsepower.

"But we'll need only about 3,000 horsepower this time," he said. "The hulls are better now and require less. Those old hulls were like barges."

★

BIGGEST boat in the show is the 42-foot Owens flagship which sleeps seven and comes at a nifty $16,800. If you want to go a little higher, there's the Consolidated cruiser at $23,500, a 39-footer which also sleeps seven and can be operated on 10 gallons of gasoline an hour.

Getting back into my class (if I save long enough) there's a sea shell you can get for $35 if you assemble it yourself. The "average man," they say, can do it in 90 hours with drill and screwdriver.

Then, too, there's a welded steel runabout cruiser on display which is finished with $2,300 worth of 23-karat gold leaf.

But they can't tempt me not even if they put in a diamond-studded deck. I'm for that gyrocraft, which keeps the waves and my stomach — where they belong!

Two Buckeye Quintets On Select List

NEW YORK—(UP)—The dice tossed by the so-called fickle hand of fate "came seven" today for the leading college basketball teams of the nation.

Only that number, out of all the host that so hopefully began the court season just six or seven weeks ago, remain unbeaten among major schools and their names are—St. Louis, western Kentucky, Hamline, Akron, Minnesota, Villanova, and Cincinnati.

How many, if any, of that select group can go through another six weeks of red-hot competition unmarked remains to be seen, but at any rate they had fully earned today the heaping praise they were receiving. The bounding Billikens of St. Louis, led through nine wins by towering "Easy Ed" Macauley, remain the leading candidates for the national championship.

GETS A WARNING

But the super seven also got a warning today, a reminder that at this time last week fully 12 teams were unbeaten. In that short space, five—North Carolina, Duquesne, Lawrence Tech, Mississippi, and Army—were toppled into defeat.

The general belief seems to be that Kentucky, whose only loss was by 42-40 to St. Louis in the finals of the Sugar Bowl tournament, is still the Bills' top rival for the title. But Minnesota, unbeaten in nine games, was rapidly growing in stature.

And you can't count out western Kentucky (10-0), Hamline (9-0), Akron (9-0), Millanova (8-0), or Cincinnati (6-0). At the moment, the other leading candidates around the nation were Illinois (10-1), La Salle (9-1), North Carolina (8-1), Tulane (12-2) with both losses from Kentucky, Texas (11-2), Bradley (13-2), Utah (10-1), and Stanford (11-2).

BIG INTEREST

Tough going was in prospect for nearly all these teams during the coming week, with perhaps the greatest interest stirred up by St. Louis' invasion of the East to play on Tuesday night against an unpredictable Long Island U. team that apparently can either beat the best or lose to the worst, and then against tough Drake on Saturday.

Here are some of the leading games this week:

On Monday—Western Kentucky - Louisville; Illinois - Ohio State; Wisconsin-Minnesota.

On Tuesday—Kentucky-Bowling Green.

On Wednesday—Fordham-Villanova; Louisville - North Carolina State.

On Thursday—Western Kentucky-Evansville; La Salle-Toledo.

On Friday — Villanova - New York A. C.; La Salle-Baldwin-Wallace.

On Saturday — Villanova-Manhatton· Ohio State-Iowa; Kansas-Washington of St. Louis; Toledo-Loyola of Chicago.

Ohio College Basketball Teams Schedule 54 Games

By FRITZ HOWELL, Ohio AP Sports Editor

COLUMBUS—Ohio's college cagers put on their biggest spree of the season this week—a 54-game program which may go a long way toward solving the Ohio conference and Mid-American loop titles.

Of the 54 contests six are in the compact six-team Mid-American, with Ohio U. meeting three foes, Western Reserve one, and the others two each. The unwieldy Ohio loop has eight games slated, with next Friday's Capital at Marietta and Otterbein at Muskingum frays attracting the spotlight.

Capital is pacing the league with three victories, but once-beaten Marietta showed power in a 92-58 win over Cedarville Saturday night, a new field house scoring record for the Pioneers. The Capitals have a 75-point scoring average for the three tilts.

HOLDS ONE WIN

Muskingum, beaten only once in seven league games, already holds a 68-62 win over Otterbein, but tthe Westerville boys have been coming along fast and must be given a chance. Akron and Kent State, unbeaten in conference play, take on non-league opponents this week, while Wittenberg, also on the "clean" list, tangles with Heidelberg in the Student Princes' conference opener.

Twenty-six of the week's 54 contests are against out-of-state opponents. Up to date the Ohioans have won 68 and lost 46 in competition with the outsiders.

In t he state-wide race Akron's Zippers are out in front with nine straight victories, followed by Cincinnati and Wilberforce with six and Capital with four. All the others have fallen at least once, Muskingum being close up with eight victories and a lone loss, followed by Ohio State with six wins and a defeat.

STATE'S BEST

Cincy's Bearcats, rolling along at a 79-point average, are the state's No. 1 offensive outfit—and are on the heels of the nation's leaders — while Wilberforce, with with a defensive average of 43, is high in that department.

Miami, topping the Mid-American with two wins, must brush aside Butler and Ohio U. this week to stay up there. Cincinnati takes on the same two opponents.

Ohio State, 68-56 winner over Northwestern Saturday night in its Western conference opener, meets Illinois here tonight and goes to Iowa Saturday.

Other games tonight — Wilmington at Bliss, Marshall at Dayton, Kent State at St. Bonaventure, Rio Grande at Cumberland, Ky., and Hanoevr at Xavier.

Indoor Track Shapes Up As Tight Affairs

NEW YORK—(AP)—A spectacular season seems in prospect for indoor track and field followers.

Two Olympic champions — Mal Whitfield and Harrison (Bones) Dillard—went to the post Saturday and both were beaten. Fast times were hung up in the Brooklyn meet staged by the Columbus Council K. of C at the 106th Engineers armory.

This Saturday the track addicts, who know their heroes' feats down to the split second, will have two meets to choose from.

At New York the local aces will battle it out in the Metropolitan AAU championships. In Washington the Washington star sponsors its second annual meet at the National Guard armory.

Whitfield, Fred Wilt, Bob Black, Phil Thigpen, Browning Ross, Gerald Karver, George Guida and Frank Fox are among the crack runners who will take part in the Washington whirls.

The New York competition will stress a fight for team points with New York U and New York A. C favored. Both the New York and Washington races will be held on flat tracks which make for slower times.

Whitfield, the world record hurdler, was defeated in two out of three sprintings by NYU's young Ira Kaplan. The lanky Cleveland Negro just nipped Kaplan to win the 80-yard dash in 8.3 seconds.

Two Tourneys

AUBURN, La —(AP)— Two leading tournaments will be entered by Auburn's 1948-49 basketball squad Coach Danny Doyle's Tigers will seek honors in the Oklahoma City tourney and participate in the annual Southeastern Conference in Louisville, March 3-5.

Two Platoon System Curb Is Advised

PALM SPRINGS, Calif.—(UP)—Recommendations to curb the "two-platoon" football system threatened to turn into a stormy session today the scheduled meeting of the NCAA rules committee under its new chairman, Herbert (Fritz) Crisler of Michigan.

There was argument, first whether it would be right to curtail mass substitution and, secondly, whether rules changes proposed by the Football Coaches' association would actually do that.

The coaches association held its annual meetings here last week while the NCAA held its annual pow-wow in San Francisco. Now the NCAA rules committee, which has final say on the coaches' rules requests, is to meet here to take final action. The major witness before the NCAA probably will be Lou Little of Columbia, chairman of the coaches rules committee.

CLAIMS IT HELPS

Little claims the new proposals which allow platoon system substitutions only when possession of the ball changes and during timeouts and eliminates all substitutions while the clock is running, are a curb on the old rules.

However, Harvey Harman of Rutgers, the retiring president of the AFCA, believes the new rule will make substitutions more prevalent than ever.

Another proposal would revive the "reverse center," which was outlawed at the close of the 1941 season. Coach Ossie Solem of Springfield (Mass.) college claims it would be a boon to colorful football, virtually providing a fifth-man in the backfield.

Harman Fires Blast at Code

SAN FRANCISCO —(AP)— The outgoing president of the American Football Coaches association lashed out at the National Collegiate Athletic association's year-old "sanity code" today. He said coaches "are fearful we have another prohibition act on our hands."

Harvey Harman of Rutgers, in a statement at the end of the association convention here, said his profession had no quarrel with the aims of the code.

"We recognize it as an effort to keep football amateur and we must be sympathetic with the motive," he declared. "We are waiting to see how honest, fair and free of hypocrisy the administration of this code will be."

The veteran Rutgers mentor asserted that "one college president (not my president) recently said 'This sanity cody will make liars of us all'."

"Now believe me when I say that we are fearful we have another prohibition act on our hands because in our hearts—and let's be honest—most of us do not regard it wrong for the regular scholarship committee to give a boy with leadership qualities, and with need, help toward his board and room."

Browns Sign Two Players

CLEVELAND —(INS)— The Cleveland Browns added two Southern Conference standouts to their roster today in a move to strengthen themselves for defense of their all-America Conference championship in 1949.

The two southerners are center Tommy Thompson of William and Mary and tackle Ted Hazelwood of the University of North Carolina.

Thompson stands six feet, two inches tall and weighs 215 pounds. He has been one of the top linemen on the William & Mary grid combines of the past four seasons. He was named to several all-America teams, as well as to sectional honors, this past fall.

Hazelwood, six-one and 220 pounds, was the mainstay of the line for undefeated North Carolina last year. Thompson is 22, Hazelwood 24.

Liederkranz Quint Tops Bowling Play

Liederkranz featured yesterday's bowling competition on the Colony alleys with a consistent 953-973-922—2,848.

That fine pinfall gave the Mansfield aggregation a two-of-three game victory over the Fremont Pennzoils in the North Central Ohio league. Orlie Grable, leadoff man, paced the individuals with 210-194-190—594 while a fair third game kept Harold Selby away from the honor roll. Selby had 210-209-163—582. Other Mansfield tallies were: Carl Englehorn, 564; Frank Burton, 561 and Carl Phillipon 547.

League - leading PD's Bar dropped two-of-three to Willard United Bank in the Women's NCO. PD's lead over the Willard team was shaved to one game.

J. Field of the Willard team was high with 166-197-149—512. Arlene Peters paced PD's with 171-151-174—496 while Kate Warga had a 480 and Lil LeMunyon 449.

★

Adam Herf topped the individuals in the Sons of Herman loop yesterday at the Colony. He had 210-181-158—549 followed by Russ Bidinger with 161-184-192—537.

Other top scores were: Emmett McIntire, 532; Phil Stirtzinger, 531; Bill Hetler, 523; John Hoff, 522 and Jack Geller, 521. McIntire had a single game of 212 and Geller had a 208.

★

Lead in the Daughters of Herman league went to Mary McIntire with 135-176-146—457. Ann Rister had 453 and Bertha Young 446. Ann had a 192.

★

Mansfield Zahn's Construction defeated the Detroit Major league ballplayers pin team in a Babe Ruth Cancer Fund match Saturday night at the Richland alleys, 2,675 to 2,478.

Vincent Rocco trailed with 182-176-181—539. Others: Harrisson, 528; John Ibe, 522; Jesse Graham, 521 and Roy Nutter, 515. Graham had a 242 and Roy Douville, 223.

Barons Whip Flyers, 4 to 3

(By United Press)

The Cleveland Barons, who looked more like chumps than champs during the first half of the American hockey league season, definitely were "on the march" today and promised plenty of trouble for the St. Louis Flyers, western division leaders.

The Barons, last season's Calder cup winners, gained ground last night by humbling the Flyers, 4 to 3, at St. Louis. Pete Leswick's goal at 11:32 of the third period presented the Barons with the victory and ruined the Flyers' home streak of 12 straight victories.

The third place Barons now rest only five points back of the Flyers and one point behind the Pittsburgh Hornets, who were idle last night.

Former State Amateur Bike Champ Injured

CLEVELAND — (INS) — Vernon H. Barnes, 48, former Ohio amateur bicycle racing champion, continued to hover between life and death today following an accident at the six-day Cleveland bike races.

An acting aid to officials of the 13th annual six-day whirl, Barnes suffered extensive laceration of the frontal parietal area of the brain and a depressed skull fracture when he was hurled over a wall, landing head first in a row of seats.

He was one of five amateur cyclists, all members of the Cleveland Wheelmen's club, who took to the track yesterday at public hall while the professional riders rode slowly on the "flat" of the track.

Barnes was attempting to pass Roy Stetina, another officials' aide, when their bicycles became tangled on a curve.

Taken to Charity hospital, Barnes underwent a brain operation early today, but still was listed in "cricital" condition.

Officials of the promoting group said the two amateurs did not have permission to go onto the track.

Barnes, a lieutenant colonel in the Ohio National guard, was Ohio cycling champ in 1947 and placed second last year.

Fox Hunters Meet

The weekly meeting of the Richland county Fox hunters is scheduled today at 8 p. m. at the courthouse. Plans for the fox drive next Saturday will be discussed. An officer's meeting is slated at 7:30 tonight.

Johnsos Choice Of Sport Scribes

CHICAGO —(UP)— Sports writers today picked Luke Johnsos, a Chicago Bear's coach, as the man most likely to succeed Jimmy Conzelman as head coach of the Chicago Cardinals National league football team.

Despite Conzelman's praise for his assistants, Phil Handler, Buddy Parker and Dick Plasman, the speculating writers gave Johnsos an inside track on the vacant post.

The Cards themselves had nothing to say.

The Southeastern conference 1948 season saw 71 players throw passes to 164 receivers for the 12 league teams.

New London Entertains Madison 5

NEW LONDON — A very much subdued New London Wildcat five will be gunning for its second victory in five starts here tomorrow when it faces a fast-stepping Madison five.

Not since the opening game at Townsend last month has New London been able to snag a win, although the opponents' margin of victory in all games but one would indicate anything but a walkaway. The poorest exhibition of ball handling was displayed in the Vermilion contest, lost by a 35-23 score.

The best game played, although lost, was the 44-42 New Haven win last Friday.

Coach Bob Brownson's first five, however, is beginning to click and the Wildcats will be a strong contender. Dave White heads the scoring parade with 52 points in four games. John Jetters is second with 37, Stuart Chase, 11; Joe Duto, 7; Milt Seiler, 3; Ron Hayes, 2.

J W. Kelly, playing his first varsity game against New Haven Friday night, racked up six markers.

In Hudson county league play, New London is batting .500, with on win and one loss. County league standings are:

	W	L	Pct.
Monroeville	4	1	.800
North Fairfield	3	1	.750
New Haven	2	1	.666
Wakeman	2	1	.666

These Guys Don't Yell About Blind Umpires

WASHINGTON —(UP)— This was one baseball meeting where nobody had any squawks about the umpire.

The National Baseball Umpires association finished with their two day convention yesterday after a session attended by 40 delegates from the east and midwest.

State Swimmers Battle Badgers

COLUMBUS —(INS) — Mike Peppe's Ohio State tankers, runnerup in the Western conference and national collegiate championships and winner of the national AAU indoor crown, open an abbreviated six-meet schedule against Wisconsin at the Buckeye natatorium Saturday, Jan. 15.

Ohio State's aquatic aces are determined to recapture the coveted "grand slam of splash" and fashion another long victory skein. Michigan's super-balanced Wolverines shattered the Buckeyes' dual meet streak at 21 in a 46-38 conquest in the season's finale.

The Wolverines went onto a triumph in the conference championships and finally broke the Buckeyes supremacy in the NCAA.

The Scarlet and Gray bounced back to capture the national AAU indoor title for the third consecutive time by building up an insurmountable lead in the diving division.

Early season indications are that Ohio State will be a ranking contender for intercollegiate swimming honors. Key rivals for the conference title revolve around Michigan's defending champs, Iowa, Purdue and OOhio State.

The Bucks appear particularly potent in the championship meets because of their overall strength in depth and brilliant quartet of divers.

After the opening against Wisconsin, the Bucks make their initial road jaunt to Northwestern. Then on successive weeks, the Buckeyes meet North Carolina, Iowa and Purdue. Ohio closes the regular season against Michigan at Ann Arbor.

Ohio State's abbreviated swimming schedule was necessitated because the tentative date with La Salle failed to materialize, while the Buckeyes dropped Indiana in order to conform with the Western conference schedule.

Purdue serves as host for the 39th annual Western conference championship affair March 4 and 5, while the national collegiate championship will be held at North Carolina, March 24 to 26.

Daytona Beach, Florida, has been chosen as the site for the national AAU festival, April 1 and 2.

Ohio State Resumes Warfare Against Illinois

Both Teams Boast Only One Defeat

COLUMBUS—(UP)—Ohio State resumes its Western conference basketball warfare tonight against a formidable Illinois five in the Ohio State fairground coliseum.

The Bucks successfully launched their season in the Big 10 Saturday night with a 68-56 win over an impotent Northwestern team that has won only two of its seven starts.

Ohio State Coach Tippy Dye fears that things will be different tonight against Illinois. The Illini has suffered only one setback—a 60 to 50 loss to DePaul in Chicago—in 11 starts. The boys from Champaign, Ill., later avenged that defeat, 89-to-51 on their home court.

Although the Bucks have lost only one game, they have only six starts to their credit, and mathematically, they have had fewer chances to lose.

ROUGH EDGES GONE

Dye hoped that his cagers had worked off the rough edges against Northwestern and "will play better against Illinois after getting that first conference game out of the way."

Illini Coach Harry Combs will pit his three top scorers—Dike Eddleman, Bill Erickson and Wally Osterkorn—against dead-eye Dick Schnittker, who has averaged better than 21 points a game for Ohio State this season. Eddleman, Erickson and Osterkorn have averaged 14.2, 12 9 and 10.5 points per contest.

Minnesota's undefeated basketball team faces two Big 10 games this week in its campaign for the first undisputed Gopher cage title since 1919.

PLAY TOP TEAMS

The Gophers tangle with Wisconsin at Minneapolis Monday while Saturday they move to Purdue for a rough struggle with another top team in the circuit.

Meanwhile Illinois, the early leader with two straight victories, takes on Ohio State at Columbus Monday with Creighton, a non-conference opponent, in sight Saturday at Champaign.

In other league games Monday Iowa travels to Indiana while Michigan will play at Purdue. Additional contests Saturday are Indiana at Wisconsin, Ohio State at Iowa, and Northwestern at Michigan.

College Athlete Aids 'Refs,' Gets Good 'Sport' Cup

BOSTON—(AP)—For going to the aid of an official in the face of some angry spectators after a decision had cost his team a vital football game, Gordon Long of Monett, Mo., University of Arkansas athlete has been selected as winner of the third annual Swede Nelson Sportsmanship award.

Selection of Long, a senior, was announced by Herb Kopf of the Boston college coaching staff, as chairman of a 12-man committee of the gridiron club of Boston which will present the trophy to the Arkansas athlete at a Boston dinner Saturday.

More than 600 sports writers and radio announcers were invited to nominate boys for the trophy, named for Nils V. (Swede) Nelson, Boston cotton merchant, who was a member of Harvard's Rose Bowl squad 30 years ago.

Nomination of Long came from Amos Melton of the Fort Worth, Tex., Star Telegram.

Baltimore Ball Fans Note Similarities of Carr, Ruth

BALTIMORE —(AP)— The name of Baltimore's immortal Babe Ruth kept popping up among fans weighing the prospects of 18-year-old Dick Carr for becoming a major league baseball pitcher.

Not that they were already comparing the youngster with the late Bambino, but they were hoping and noting similarities between the starts of Carr and Ruth.

Both the late home run king and Carr were signed up originally as pitchers, Carr by the New York Yankees and the Babe by Boston. Ruth later was sold to the Yankees.

It was after several years as a good hurler that Ruth began slugging and played the outfield.

Carr, who won 52 games and lost five in four years of high school and American Legion baseball, also plays the outfield. And he hit close to .400 as a southpaw, again like Ruth, although he throws from the right.

There's a difference of opinion over just what may prove to be Carr's eventual forte—pitching or hitting. But brother Martin John of Mount St. Joseph's high, who coached Carr in high school and sandlot games, believes it will be pitching

"He's got everything and is only about two years away from the major leagues," brother Martin said today. "He'll be even better than he has been when he gets down to spring training camp with the Yankees and really gets in shape."

Ruth also was coached first by a religious, brother Gilbert at St. Mary's industrial home here, who recommended him to the Baltimore Orioles.

Plans Near Finish For Willard Fete Honoring Whisler

WILLARD — Plans are progressing for the appreciation dinner to be given on Jan. 28 by the Elks club honoring Willard's Joe Whisler.

First on the program is a full course dinner, after which the sports celebrities attending will be introduced and Wesley Fesler, head football coach at Ohio State university, will deliver an address.

Pictures will be shown of the Ohio-Michigan and Ohio-Illinois football games of the past season.

Others planning to attend are Jim Langhurst, formerly of Willard, who captained Ohio State's 1940 football team, and former fellow players, Wendell Lohr and Charles Ream, ends, and Frank Zadworney, tackle.

End Coach Sarkinen and Assistant Coach Dick Fisher, of Ohio State, will also be present.

Dr. James Hull, Columbus dentist and former Ohio State basketball star, will be master of ceremonies.

T. of C. Invades New York City

NEW YORK —(INS)— All was in readiness today for the scheduled invasion of New York City by the tournament of champions of New Jersey, boxing promotion enterprise.

The T. of C. is going to stage indoor bouts at Manhattan center.

The T. of C. now announces that its first bout at the new area will be a heavyweight between Rusty Payne of Pittsburgh and Curtis Shepherd of Baltimore. It is scheduled for Jan. 19th.

Pro Peace Snafued By LA Passer

By LES CONKLIN

NEW YORK—(INS)—The prospective peace between the two warring major pro football leagues was fouled up a bit, and somewhat mysteriously today by the Bob Waterfield incident.

Waterfield is, or was, the star passer of the Los Angeles Rams of the National Football league. The other day he said that he was interested in an offer by the New York Yankees of the rival All-America conference.

The initial reaction to this development was that it would snafu the affairs of the rival leagues worse than a hard knot in a wet shoestring. The two circuits are a far cry from Damon and Pythias, but on the point of raiding stars who have played in the other league, they hitherto have been in agreement.

HUSH-HUSH STUFF

Today, however, the hush-hush treatment was given to the Waterfield incident by both the two clubs concerned. The Yankees said they had no knowledge of the proposal to bring Waterfield to New York. And in Los Angeles, President Dan Reeves of the Rams was confident he would have little trouble in re-signing Robert.

These pronouncements, if taken at face value, would seem to leave Mr. Waterfield dangling on a long and shaky limb.

Waterfield's three-year contract with the Rams calls for $18,000 a year. It expired after last season, and the Rams have until May 1 to pick up an option on the future services of their star passer. The option provides that he get the same wages this year.

TO MATCH SALARY

According to the original Los Angeles report, the Yankees offered to match the salary figure paid Bob by the Rams. The New Yorkers need a T-passer after having missed out on Nevada's Stan Heath and Georgia's Johnny Rauch.

Waterfield said the other day that he would like to play is Los Angeles. For one reason, his wife, Jane Russell of the films, works there.

Pitcher To Yanks

CHICAGO — (INS) — The Chicago White Sox today sent Pete Gebrianan, 25-year-old righthander, to the New York Yankees' Newark, N. J., farm club in the International league to complete the deal that brought Pitcher Randy Gumpert from the Yankees to the Sox last season.

Decision Is Due On Leo's Latest

CINCINNATI —(UP)— The decision on whether or not Manager Leo Durocher of the Giants was guilty of "tampering" when he signed coach Freddie Fitzsimmons last fall may be announced tomorrow or Wednesday by Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler, his secretary, Walter Mulbry, said today.

Chandler, who held hearings on the issue last month, will decide whether or not Fitzsimmons was signed as a Giant coach before his contract expired with the Boston Braves during the 1948 season.

Yaros Favored

NEW YORK —(INS)— Tommy Yaros of Monaca, Pa., is favored to defeat Burl Charity of Youngstown, O., in the feature 10-round bout at St. Nicholas arena tonight.

Group Raps Overlapping

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— A Hoover commission "task force" on federal statistical agencies reports that they use too much overlapping in the gathering of facts and figures by the federal government.

It uses statistics to make its point.

The report, it was learned today, points out that some 10,500 full-time government employes are engaged in statistical work. It found that, as of last June 30, such activities in the civilian agencies cost about $43,000,000 a year.

To correlate and properly present "the facts of national life," the task force suggested establishment in the President's office of an "office of statistical standards and services having general responsibility for the development and maintenance of a system of statisitcal intelligence and for its economical management."

Janet Hagans First Mansfield Woman to Join Air Force Unit

Mansfield's first young woman to give up the civilian way of life and to take up the khaki of Uncle Sam's Air force is Miss Janet Ann Hagans, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Hagans, 59 Franklin avenue. She has enlisted in the WAFs for three years.

Miss Hagans will first go to Lackland Air Center, San Antonio, Texas for 11 weeks of basic training after which she may attend an Army specialized achool or be assigned to duty. Her ambition after finishing basic training is to attend the Army's officer candidate school and receive her WAF commission.

Flying has interested Miss Hagans for some time. She soloed last summer but will do no actual flying in the WAF.

Miss Hagans said she decided to join the WAF after reading a News-Journal story about Miss Jean Corfman, of Upper Sandusky, joining the service.

Miss Hagans graduated from Mansfield Senior High school in the class of '48, she was the secretary of the Manhigan and was a member of the National Honor Society.

Five Persons Die In Crash

SAN DIEGO, CALIF., — (AP) — A private plane crashed into a Methodist church conference camp grounds 60 miles northeast of here yesterday, killing five of the six persons aboard.

A caretaker at the camp, Sydney Lynn, said he believed the two-engine plane was trying to land. It glided down out of a mountain snowstorm.

The hospital at Julian, Calif., reported the only living passenger regained consciousness long enough to say her name, "Madelaine," presumably Mrs. Madelaine Dorothy Baer of Inglewood, Calif. She was injured critically.

Youngster Killed

CINCINNATI—(AP)—A shotgun blast fired accidentally by a playmate yesterday took the life of seven-year-old Meredity Kennedy. Detective Chief Clem Merz said Harold Bauer, 8, picked up a shotgun in the kitchen of the Bauer home and playfully ordered the younger boy to "stick 'em up."

See Steel Going Into New Outlets

Defense Program Claimed No 'Prop'

CLEVELAND —(U.P.)— National defense as a "prop" to production in the metalworking field may be "overemphasized," the magazine Steel said today.

The metalworking trade journal said a survey of companies "indicates few outside the aircraft industry have, or anticipate, any large volume of defense work."

Steel added that metalworking companies are not likely to receive many more armament orders than they now have if the defense budget is held within $15,000,000,000.

The magazine reported that "considerable uncertainty" with respect to prices now prevails in the steel market, and expressed doubt that the mills can absorb rising costs indefinitely.

It said the new emergency freight rate increases, which become effective Jan. 11, will bring no immediate change in mill prices. But it added that "once the industry has opportunity to appraise the full effect of this hike, some upward revisions may be made, depending on general economic conditions at that time."

Steel's weekly production survey showed steelmaking operations increased two points last week to 99.5 per cent of capacity, the highest rate on record for the start of a given year.

The ingot rate rose 2½ points from the revised rate at Pittsburgh to 96 per cent of capacity, 7 to 84.5 at St. Louis and 11½ to 95 in western Pennsylvania. The rate fell 2½ points to 90 per cent at Wheeling, 1½ to 94.5 at Cleveland and 1 to 85 in New England.

The magazine estimated national steel producing capacity at the start of this year as 96,000,000 ingot tons, an increase of 1,800,000 tons over a year ago.

Pupils Give Two Plays

Students at Senior high school will present two one-act plays before Mansfield's teacher organizations within the next two weeks, Earl Heasley, dramatics teacher at the school, has announced.

The first will be given next Thursday at 7:30 p. m. at the the YMCA for members of the Mansfield Federation of Teachers. It will be the comedy, "You're Fired," and will be presented by Jane VanTilburg, Audrey McCoy, Philip Bolin, Gizella Knefely and Robert Ward.

The story deals with the predicament of a young man who falls in love with the wrong girl and tries to get himself fired from his job. At the last minute the labor union steps in and prevents him from losing his job.

The second play is "Afraid of the Dark", a story of the death row in a penitentiary.

"We're not presenting this play because of its morbidness, but rather because of its effectiveness and sincerity," Heasley said.

Sets for the play are being made entirely by the students.

Only five boys are in the cast. They include: Robert Ward, Philip Bolin and Harry McCune as the three convicts; Raymond Stretch as the chaplain and David Stanton as the guard.

Miss Martha Eckert, speech teacher at Senior high school, also will present scenes from several plays.

The program will be presented to the Mansfield Teacher's association on Monday, Jan. 17 about 3:45 p. m. at the Senior high school auditorium.

EGGS AND POULTRY

CLEVELAND — (INS) — Consumer grades: AA large white 63, brown 58; A large white 58-61, brown 55-59; A medium white 53-54, brown 50-52.

Wholesale grades: (extras) large white 49-51-50, brown 47-49-50; (extras) medium white 44-45, brown 42-43.

Market about steady. Medium steady to firm with prices slightly higher. (Extras) large white and brown barely steady under liberal receipts and dull demand.

Live Poultry: Fowl, colored and heavy type, 43-44; fowl, leghorn and light type, 33-35; fryers and broilers, heavy type, 36-38; old roosters 19-21; stags 35-37.

Market quiet. Week-end clearances good and some quarters note late week-end demand was not fully satisfied. Undertone on fowl about steady. Easy to weak on fryers and broilers.

LEGEND OF THE NORTH—Quite a stir was created in Washington when this gigantic figure, attired in a lumberjack's outfit complete with spikes and two-bladed axe, appeared. It turned out that he was 7-foot, 6-inch Lem Costley of International Falls, Minn., who came to take the role of the fabulous Paul Bunyan at a gathering of the Minnesota State society. He was shown to his hotel room by bellhop George Reis, dwarfed by Costley's bulk.

Texas League May Set Mark

FT. WORTH, Tex. — (AP) — The prediction that the Texas league this year would be Class AA in fact as well as name and would set an all-time record in attendance was made today by President J. Alvin Gardner.

Gardner, declaring that the club owners were progressive, smart baseball men with great promotional ideas, forecast last year's record attendance of 2,041,043 would be exceeded by a considerable figure.

More than 300 players will be in spring training camps in March, the club owners reported.

Sale of a controlling interest in the Oklahoma City club to Bill Veeck, president of the Cleveland Indians, and Rudie Schaffer, business manager of Cleveland, by Harold Pope was approved.

Boudreau Chosen For Ball Trophy

BOSTON —(AP)— Lou Boudreau, classy shortstop and able playing manager of the world champion Cleveland Indians, will be presented the Paul Shannon Memorial trophy by the Boston chapter of the Baseball Writers' association at the annual dinner Feb. 3.

The trophy, named for the late baseball editor of the Boston Post, will be given Boudreau for being baseball's outstanding player in the 1948 season.

Youngster Paces Bowling Champs

CHICAGO —(AP)— The Sharkey recreation team of Battle Creek, Mich., paced by Harry Smith, 17-year-old Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, high school student, won the $1,000 first prize early today in the Ray Schalk bowling sweepstakes.

Smith, who weighs 106 pounds, rolled a dazzling 928 with games of 257, 233, 206 and 232. The Sharkey team collected first prize money in the $6,000 tourney with a four-game total of 4,006.

Crestline VFW Post To Donate Footballs

CRESTLINE — Harley-Helfrich post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Friday night voted $25 for the purchase of footballs for the local high school team to be presented at the annual banquet Jan. 18.

The annual financial report showed $13,000 had been spent for various activities and repairs. It also included the Christmas treat given several hundred children. Modern equipment is planned for a new kitchen in the local VFW hall.

MEETING SET THURSDAY

PLYMOUTH—A fellowship supper will precede the annual business meeting of the Presbyterian church here at 7:45 p. m. Thursday.

Dean Files Suit Against Indians

CLEVELAND — (U.P.) — Alfred (Chubby) Dean, former pitcher for the Cleveland Indians, today filed suit against the Cleveland Baseball Co. for $4,450 in federal court.

Dean's claim was based on the GI bill which provided him a year of employment after he left the Army in 1946. He was released in training camp that spring before Bill Veeck bought the ball club.

Indians Business Manager Rudie Shaffer said "If a settlement of this claim hasn't been made, I am sure that it will be."

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

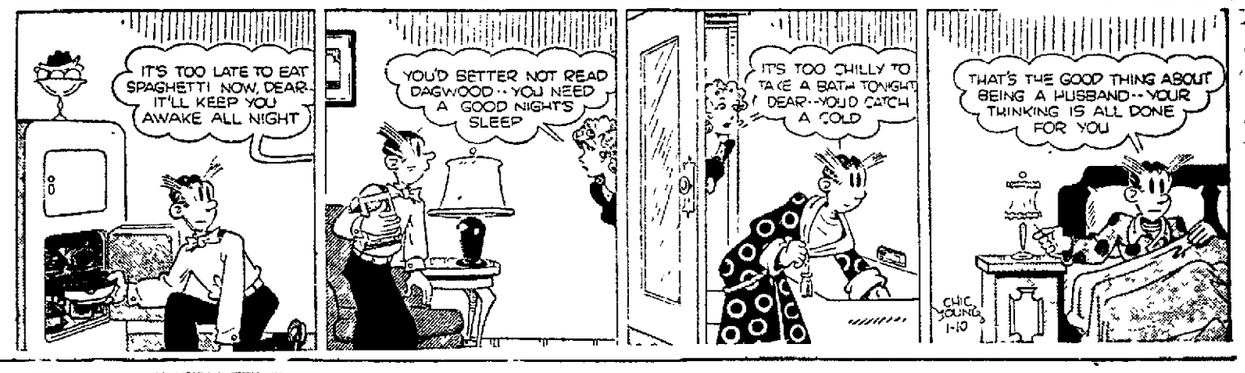
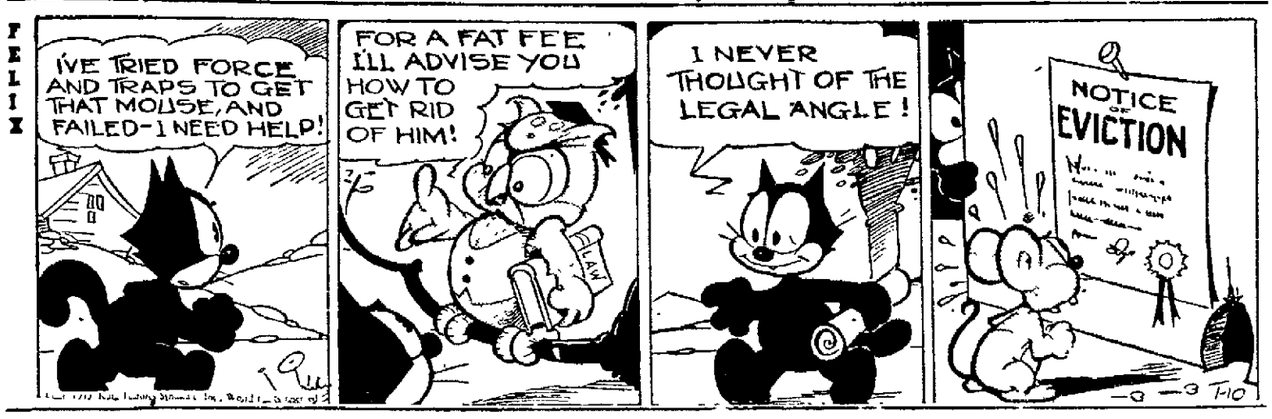
IT'S A BAD DREAM....OHHH IT'S GOTTA BE...
THAT PITCHER DOVEY SHOWED ME MUSTA BEEN TOOK TWENTY YEARS AGO!
DOVEY!...OH IT'S YOU! ...WHERE'S MY LITTLE GIRL...WHERE IS SHE?... DO YOU KNOW IT'S ELEVEN O'CLOCK?
I DUNNO... AN' I DON'T CARE..
OH, HUMPHREY DEAR... THIS IS THE MOST EXCITING TIME...IT'S SHEER MADNESS ...WHAT TIME IS IT....BELOVED ...OHH GLORIOUS... GLORIOUS...NIGHT...
IT'S RAININ', DOVEY ...YOU BETTER GIT IN THE BACK AN' I'LL RIDE YA HOME.

BLONDIE



IT'S TOO LATE TO EAT SPAGHETTI NOW, DEAR IT'LL KEEP YOU AWAKE ALL NIGHT
YOU'D BETTER NOT READ DAGWOOD--YOU NEED A GOOD NIGHT'S SLEEP
IT'S TOO CHILLY TO TAKE A BATH TONIGHT DEAR--YOU'D CATCH A COLD
THAT'S THE GOOD THING ABOUT BEING A HUSBAND--YOUR THINKING IS ALL DONE FOR YOU
CHIC YOUNG 1-10

FELIX



I'VE TRIED FORCE AND TRAPS TO GET THAT MOUSE, AND FAILED-I NEED HELP!
FOR A FAT FEE I'LL ADVISE YOU HOW TO GET RID OF HIM!
I NEVER THOUGHT OF THE LEGAL ANGLE!
NOTICE OF EVICTION

ORPHAN ANNIE

OH; THE GIRLS HAVE GOT TO START TO SCHOOL, JEB--WHY, FOLKS WOULD START TALKIN'...
PFAUGH ON TH' NEIGHBORS AND WHAT THEY SAY...
1-10-49
BUT IT'S ONLY A LITTLE WAY TO TOWN, TH' SHORT CUT PAST TH' OLD QUARRY...
AND WE'D HAVE PLENTY TIME 'FORE AND AFTER SCHOOL TO DO TH' MILKIN' AND TH' REST OF TH' CHORES...
'TAIN'T THAT--IT'S JUST SCHOOLIN' IN GENERAL... I SAY MOST SCHOOLIN' IS A WASTE O' TIME...
NOW, JEB--DON'T START THAT--NOT BEFORE THE CHILDREN, ANYWAY...
HAROLD GRAY

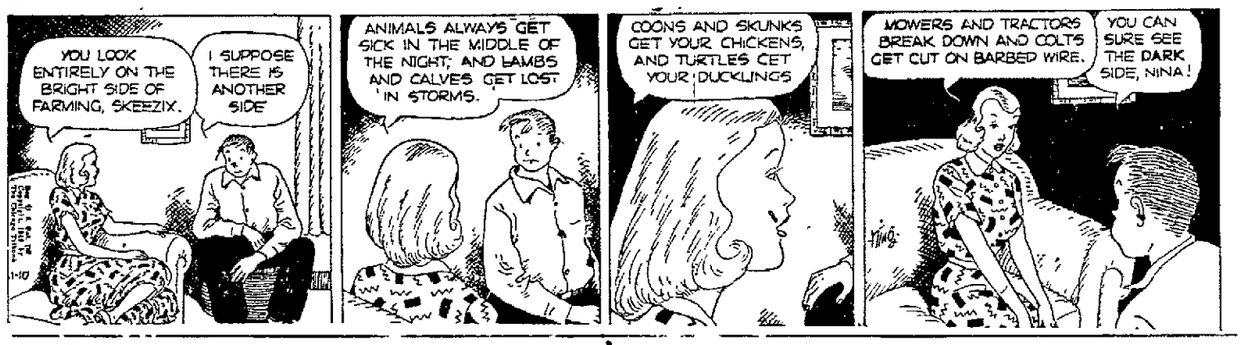
TERRY & PIRATES

GOLLY, TERRY! GUESS WE CAN'T EXPECT MUCH HELP FROM OL' STONEFACE HERE UNTIL HE LEARNS ABOUT AIRPLANES.
SHHH! I'M TRYING TO REMEMBER ANY PEARLS OF WISDOM I MIGHT HAVE HEARD SOME SLIDE RULE JOCKEY FROM THE AIR ENGINEERS...HEY!
IT'S THE PICK AND SHOVEL BALLET MAYOR CHUM DRUMMED UP...AND THEY'RE DEPENDING ON CHOPS' LONG SHOT STUNT TO PAY OFF IN MILK FOR THEIR KIDS.
YEAH! WHILE THE OL' CABBAGE FANCIER'S SITTING BY A FIRE SOME PLACE FIGURING THE TAKE IF IT SHOULD HAPPEN TO...LOOK!
OH, NO!
STRANGE! THE TWO FOREIGN IRON-BIRD DRIVERS WERE WATCHING US AND THEY SUDDENLY SWOONED!

DICK TRACY

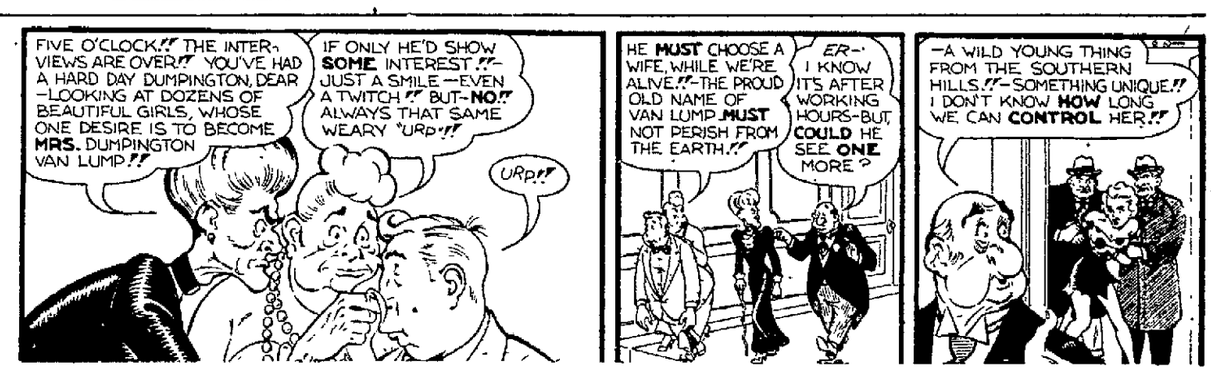
THAT'S ALL THERE IS TO IT, JOHNNY I WANT TO LOCATE THOSE 2 MEN. I HAVE SOME WORK FOR THEM TO DO.
SAM'S 2-WAY RADIO
SLEET, YOU'VE ALWAYS BEEN TRICKY--A STOOL PIGEON! I DON'T TRUST YOU
PLEASE, JOHNNY! I TRUST YOU! I'VE COME TO YOU, OF ALL MEN IN THE WORLD, FOR A LITTLE HELP. SURELY, YOU CAN'T--
WHAT DO YOU WANT THESE TORPEDOES FOR?
JOHNNY, HONEY, DO I HAVE TO TELL YOU EVERYTHING?

GASOLINE ALLEY



YOU LOOK ENTIRELY ON THE BRIGHT SIDE OF FARMING, SKEEZIX.
I SUPPOSE THERE IS ANOTHER SIDE
ANIMALS ALWAYS GET SICK IN THE MIDDLE OF THE NIGHT, AND LAMBS AND CALVES GET LOST IN STORMS.
COONS AND SKUNKS GET YOUR CHICKENS, AND TURTLES GET YOUR DUCKLINGS
MOWERS AND TRACTORS BREAK DOWN AND COLTS GET CUT ON BARBED WIRE.
YOU CAN SURE SEE THE DARK SIDE, NINA!

LI'L ABNER



FIVE O'CLOCK!! THE INTERVIEWS ARE OVER!! YOU'VE HAD A HARD DAY DUMPINGTON, DEAR--LOOKING AT DOZENS OF BEAUTIFUL GIRLS, WHOSE ONE DESIRE IS TO BECOME MRS. DUMPINGTON VAN LUMP!!
IF ONLY HE'D SHOW SOME INTEREST!!--JUST A SMILE--EVEN A TWITCH!! BUT--NO!! ALWAYS THAT SAME WEARY "URP"!!
URP!!
HE MUST CHOOSE A WIFE, WHILE WE'RE ALIVE!!--THE PROUD OLD NAME OF VAN LUMP MUST NOT PERISH FROM THE EARTH!!
ER--I KNOW IT'S AFTER WORKING HOURS--BUT COULD HE SEE ONE MORE?
--A WILD YOUNG THING FROM THE SOUTHERN HILLS!!--SOMETHING UNIQUE!! I DON'T KNOW HOW LONG WE CAN CONTROL HER!!

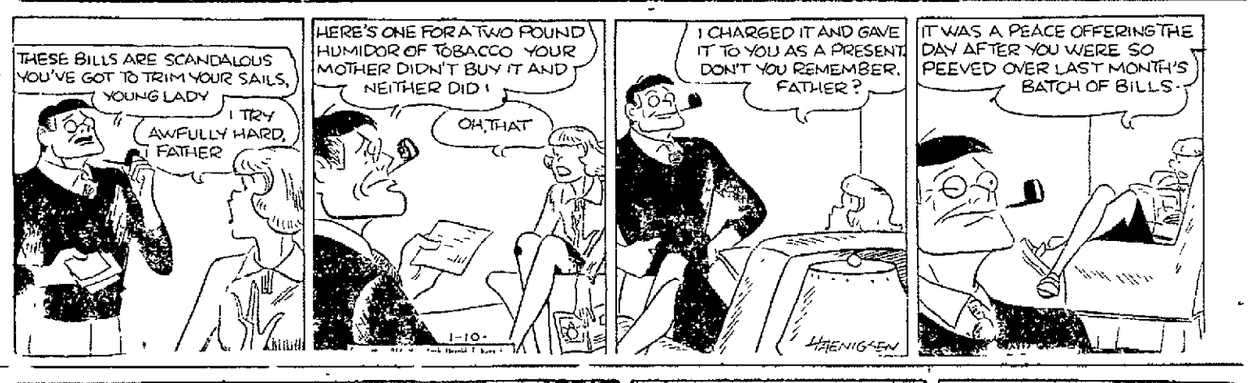
RIP KIRBY

QUITE A BACKLOG OF MAIL, SIR...INCLUDING A NUMBER OF INTERESTING REQUESTS FOR YOUR SERVICES. HERE'S ONE FROM TRANS-OCEAN SHIPPERS LTD.... A PIER LOOTING CASE..
NO... THAT'S ROUTINE POLICE WORK. NOT FOR US.
AMALGAMATED CHEMICALS WANTS YOU TO SET UP A NEW SECURITY SYSTEM FOR THEIR PLANTS. A MOST LUCRATIVE OFFER, SIR..
DULL AND UNINTERESTING. TELL THEM NO AND...THE DOORBELL.. SEE WHO'S RINGING IT...
MR. KIRBY, I'M DIXON BEAUMONT. MY CASE IS A BIT OUT OF YOUR LINE.. BUT PLEASE HEAR MY STORY...YOU MUST HELP..AND MONEY IS NO OBJECT!

BRICK BRADFORD

THERE'S MORE O' THE NATIVES A-WORKIN', BRICK-- BUT THERE DON'T SEEM TO BE NO GUARDS ABOUT!
DON'T WORRY, THEY'RE NEAR BY--BESIDES THE WORKERS ARE SHACKLED TO IRON BARS!
YEP! AS YOU SAID, THEY CERTAIN'Y COULDN' GO FAR IN THIS JUNGLE WITH ONE O' THOSE ANCHORS!
I THINK THERE'S SOME OTHER CONTROL OVER THEM THAT PREVENTS EVEN THEIR TRYING!

PENNY



THESE BILLS ARE SCANDALOUS YOU'VE GOT TO TRIM YOUR SAILS, YOUNG LADY
I TRY AWFULLY HARD, FATHER
HERE'S ONE FOR A TWO POUND HUMIDOR OF TOBACCO YOUR MOTHER DIDN'T BUY IT AND NEITHER DID I
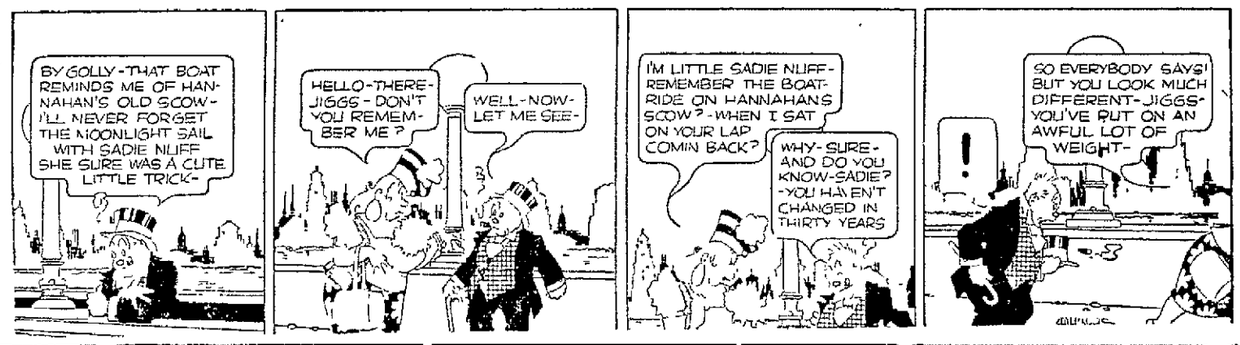
OH, THAT I CHARGED IT AND GAVE IT TO YOU AS A PRESENT, DON'T YOU REMEMBER, FATHER?
IT WAS A PEACE OFFERING THE DAY AFTER YOU WERE SO PEEVED OVER LAST MONTH'S BATCH OF BILLS.

IGGS



BY GOLLY-THAT BOAT REMINDS ME OF HANNAHAN'S OLD SCOW-I'LL NEVER FORGET THE MOONLIGHT SAIL WITH SADIE NLIFF SHE SURE WAS A CUTE LITTLE TRICK-
HELLO-THERE-JIGGS-DON'T YOU REMEMBER ME?
WELL-NOW-LET ME SEE-
I'M LITTLE SADIE NLIFF-REMEMBER THE BOAT-RIDE ON HANNAHAN'S SCOW?-WHEN I SAT ON YOUR LAP COMIN BACK?
WHY-SURE-AND DO YOU KNOW-SADIE?-YOU HAVEN'T CHANGED IN THIRTY YEARS
SO EVERYBODY SAYS! BUT YOU LOOK MUCH DIFFERENT-JIGGS-YOU'VE PUT ON AN AWFUL LOT OF WEIGHT-

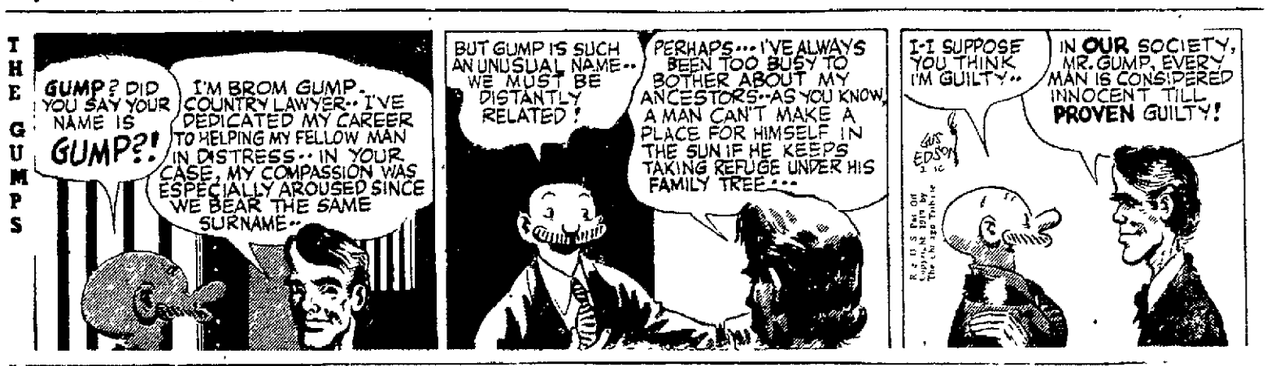
THE GUMPS



GUMP? DID YOU SAY YOUR NAME IS GUMP?!
I'M BROM GUMP. COUNTRY LAWYER.. I'VE DEDICATED MY CAREER TO HELPING MY FELLOW MAN IN DISTRESS.. IN YOUR CASE, MY COMPASSION WAS ESPECIALLY AROUSED SINCE WE BEAR THE SAME SURNAME..
BUT GUMP IS SUCH AN UNUSUAL NAME.. WE MUST BE DISTANTLY RELATED!
PERHAPS... I'VE ALWAYS BEEN TOO BUSY TO BOTHER ABOUT MY ANCESTORS--AS YOU KNOW, A MAN CAN'T MAKE A PLACE FOR HIMSELF IN THE SUN IF HE KEEPS TAKING REFUGE UNDER HIS FAMILY TREE...
I-I SUPPOSE YOU THINK I'M GUILTY..
IN OUR SOCIETY, MR. GUMP, EVERY MAN IS CONSIDERED INNOCENT TILL PROVEN GUILTY!

Child's Book Tells of Dogs And Engines

7 New Stories Ready at Library

"Tootle," by Gertrude Crampton, is one of seven new juvenile books which were available at the Mansfield Public Library today.

The book tells the story of one little engine which learned all the things trains must know, such as how to go through a tunnel and how to carry milk without turning it to butter. The most important thing the engine learned was how to stay on the tracks no matter what happened.

Angels have to learn things, too. One of the things they learn is the ANGELS' ALPHABET. You can learn it, too, if you read the book by Hilda Van Stockum. There are beautiful pictures for every letter, a word that the letter stands for and a verse to explain. Some of the verses will make good prayers, or Sunday school recitations.

HIS MESSENGERS WENT FORTH, by Julie Chanlor, is a collection of stories about eight men. They are Krishna, Moses, Zoroaster, Buddha, Confucius, Jesus, Mohammed, and Baha-O-LLah. They are all different because they all lived at different times, in different places. Each of them founded a new religion.

All readers of Western stories, all lovers of cowboys and Indians, have read about the COYOTES, those strange dog-like animals with the frightful howls that always shriek in the dark and make the cowboys snuggle closer into their blankets. Nearly everyone knows that coyotes make a terrible noise, but are really cowards and sneaks. Wilfrid Bronson has written a short small book, with big type and lots of pictures to tell you a lot more about coyotes It will give you some new ideas about these funny animals.

DOG STORY

Dogs are much like coyotes so it's an easy switch to Mary Elting's new book about PATCH. Patch was a dog, and could certainly get into more mischief than a whole pack of coyotes. He belonged to Tony and Joe. One day the two boys were trying to slip past Mr. Rankin's house without being seen, because they were afraid Mr. Rankin would chase them.

He didn't like Patch. So, what do you suppose Patch did? He ran right into Rankin's yard, pulled the rope and rang the old farm bell loud enough to wake the dead. Tony and Joe taught Patch to meet the mailman and get the mail. So, what did he do? He grabbed Mr. Rankin's paper and brought it home. You can see that they had trouble and more trouble with Patch and you'll surely enjoy the training of Patch and the good deed he did at the end.

The season for playing baseball is past, but the season for reading baseball stories lasts 12 months LEGION TOURNEY, by Wilfred McCormick, is the second Bronc Burnett story and tells the story of the state tournament in which little Sonora didn't have a chance, but managed somehow to hang on. There's lots of fast moving, exciting baseball playing, as well as a good deal about baseball superstitions and their effect on players

PATSY JEFFERSON OF MONTICELLO, BY Marguerite Vance, is another biography for older girls that captures the romance and the fun of a bygone day. It must have been hard to be the daughter of a famous man, a man whose life was often in danger because of what he believed, yet a man who grew to be loved by his countryman. Yet, it must have been exciting, too, to accompany a famous father when he went abroad, called on queens and kings, and attended royal balls This is a book both for girls who like to dream, and for girls who like their books to be true.

CASE HISTORY—An identacoding technician jots down little Poochie's case history before tattooing.

Painless Tattooing!

Dog's Identity No Longer His Secret

By BERTRAM ROBINSON
(By Central Press)

LOS ANGELES — The problem of devising an accurate and permanent system of identification for dogs—one that would insure their prompt and safe return to their owners when they become lost, have strayed, or been stolen, has plagued the minds of sportsmen and canine lovers in general, for decades.

Little progress was made until the Armys K—9 Corps of World War II was compelled to contrive some adequate method of identification so that when the war ceased dogs that were loaned for the duration could be easily identified and returned to their owners

Every form of previous identification was found valueless. Tags and collars were all too frequently ripped or torn off, mislaid or forgotten, to serve the purpose.

However, the sheer stringency of the situation compelled the K—9 Corps to continue experimenting. Finally it hit upon a tattoo high up inside the dogs right hind leg was most feasible because it was safe from extraneous defacing effects.

True, the real pioneering in this field was done back in the early 1920s by Walter Dethloff, then superintendent of the Wisconsin Humane society and now active in humane work in Boston, when he attempted to inaugurate a tattoo system for canine identification at that time.

Unfortunately, however, interest in dogs in those days was not as widespread as it is today, so Mr. Dethloffs idea met with scant response.

Even the K—9 Corps heroic efforts failed to carry the idea farther than the comparatively limited confines of its own organization.

The man who really is responsible for giving the idea a propitious start on a genuinely sound and workable basis is H Graham Conar, founder and president of the National Dog Record bureau, who was moved by the plight of 25,000 dogs being destroyed each year in Los Angeles public and private shelters for lack of proper identification.

Being fully cognizant of Dethloffs past efforts and the partial success achieved by the K—9 Corps, he decided that, while the tattoo plan was sound, it did not go far enough.

So he presented the problem of concocting a nation-wide code of canine identification to his friend and associate, James Schermerhorn, Jr., newsman and novelist.

Dogs are no respectors of boundaries—county or state—and dog thieves cross boundaries without interference. Therefore, the sought for code would not only have to identify a dog in its own state, but in any county in the country where it might be found.

Schermerhorn considered all these factors in arriving at the code he finally evolved and recommended to Conar.

NAMED "IDENTACODE

They decided to call the new identification system "identacode, and set about creating an agency to administer it on a national scale. This they called the National Dog Record bureau, and established headquarters in Los Angeles.

Under the identacode atttoo identification method, states are listed alphabetically then number. This gives each state its own individual number which is incorporated into the serial number tattooed painlessly on the dog. The National Dog Record bureau assigns the numbers, and all records are microfilmed and stored for 20 years in a vault in the Bank of America.

The operation of the identacode is simplicity itself. Take California, for example, where Los Angeles is No. "19 and California itself is "4. This appears on a dog as "4 dash "19, followed by numbers on a second line which are reserved to represent the owner. In the case of Mr. Conar's Doberman, which was the first dog to be identacoded in California, the legend "4-19 is on the top line and "1 is on the second or lower line, viz:

Should his dog ever come into anyones possession, he can be quickly identified by any shelter or city pound in the United States as a California dog, from Los Angeles county, belonging to Conar.

By virtue of having his dog identacoded, Conar is also issued a "certificate of record that is given to every dog owner whose dog is so identified. Any person picking up a tattooed dog without reporting it can be held liable for retaining personal property belonging to another.

This certificate is signed in duplicate by an officer of NDRB, and is stamped with the corporation seal. On the reverse side of this card is a space for the owner to sign when the dog is sold.

BRANDED—Poochie's code number is painlessly tattooed inside rear leg.

National Defense, Foreign Aid Big Items In New Budget

Deficit of 1½ Billion Predicted

More Payroll Taxes Asked

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Major points in President Truman's 30,000-word budget message:

DEFICIT

Estimated deficit for fiscal 1949 —$600,000,000, based on estimated expenditures of $40,180,000,000 and receipts of $39,580,000,000. Thus, the government stands to go into the red to the tune of $1,473,000,000 for the two years ending June 30, 1950, unless Congress raises taxes.

EXPENDITURES

National defense—Estimate at $14,300,000,000 for fiscal 1950 compared to $11,800,000,000 for 1949.

Foreign — $6,700,000,000 in fiscal 1950 compared to $7,200,000,000 in 1949. Most of this will be spent as part of "the strong economic support we are extending to the free nations of Western Europe."

Veterans—$5,500,000,000 for fiscal 1950, or $1,300,000,000 less than 1949.

Public debt interest—More than $5,400,000,000 for fiscal 1950 compared to $5,300,000,000 in 1949.

All other government expenditures—a total of $10,000,000,000 in fiscal 1950.

TAXES

Recommends $5,960,000,000 in new taxes—$4,000,000,000 from higher corporate, individual and excise taxes; $1,700,000,000 in social security payroll taxes by increasing them from one per cent to 1½ per cent on July 1, by raising the present $3,000 ceiling on taxable earnings and extending the payroll tax to workers and employers not now covered; and $260,000,000 on his proposed health insurance program.

ATOMIC ENERGY

Estimated expenditures of $725,000,000 by the Atomic Energy commission in fiscal 1950 compared to $632,000,000 in 1949.

"Special emphasis is given to the development of nuclear reactors as an eventual means for converting atomic energy into electricity and into power for propulsion of ships and airplanes . . ."

ARMED SERVICES

Recommendations are based on a plan for "a national defense position of relative military preparedness, coupled with a higher degree of mobilization preparedness."

Air Force—$4,600,000,000.

Army—$4,500,000,000 for fiscal 1950.

Navy and Marines—$4,600,000,000 for fiscal 1950.

Universal military Training — . . . "Universal training is essential if we are to achieve an acceptable degree of national security." A tentative estimate of $600,000,000 has been added to the defense budget for the first year cost of universal training.

Selective Service—Present recruiting rates indicate that only small inductions, if any, will be necessary.

SOCIAL WELFARE

Total expenditures for these purposes are estimated at nearly $5,158,000,000. But only $2,358,000,000 would come out of the budget directly, and the bulk of that would be federal grants to states.

VETERANS

Cancellation of 24 veterans' hospital projects and a reduction in the planned capacity of 14 other hospitals. An initial dividend of $2,000,000,000 is schedule for payment during fiscal 1950 to all servicemen who hold or have held National Service Life insurance.

HOUSING

Federal assistance for public housing that would permit construction of 1,050,000 low-rent units over a seven-year period.

FARM

Estimated of $1,662,000,000 in fiscal 1950, compared to $1,805,000,000 in 1949. Expenditures for price supports are expected to drop from $866,000,000 in fiscal 1949 to $538,000,000 in fiscal 1950.

LABOR

Government labor programs in fiscal 1950 will cost about $187,000,000 or about $3,000,000 more than in 1949. "The labor department should be substantially strengthened through reorganization to bring together units which properly belong in it."

MISCELLANEOUS

An increase in second and third class postal rates. Early approval of the St. Lawrence waterway and power project. Encourage commercial production of synthetic liquid fuel.

Movie Clock . . .

MADISON—"The Return of October," 1:50, 3:50, 5:50, 7:50, and 9:50 p. m.

PARK—"Riff Raff," 1:30, 4:47, and 8:11 p. m.; "On Our Merry Way," 3:00, 6:17, and 9:41 p. m.

Here's How It's Spent

WASHINGTON — (UP) — Here's how your tax dollar would be divided under President Truman's proposed budget for fiscal 1950:

National defense, 34 cents.
International, including foreign aid, 16 cents.
Veterans programs, 13 cents.
Interest on public debt, 13 cents.
Health-security-social welfare, 6 cents.
Natural resources, 5 cents.
All other, 13 cents.
Total $1.00.

Jap Sailors Decide War Really Ended

GUAM—(UP)—Two Japanese sailors dressed in American uniforms arrived here today from Iwo Jima, where they hid in a labyrinth of caves for nearly four years.

They surrendered to four air force fliers Thursday, claiming they learned of Japan's surrender only recently by reading fragments of English language newspapers.

Both men were machine gunners on Iwo Jima when the Americans landed. When they surrendered they were living in a cave well stocked with pilfered American military supplies.

They slept in the cave during the day and made forays after supplies at night.

tive member of the Central Methodist church and the Bible Study club. She also was active in Red Cross work.

Besides her husband, she is survived by one son, Robert of Columbus; two daughters, Mrs. Robert Lee of Ashland and Mrs. Gayle Hopkins of Mansfield; a brother, Norman Bushong of Swanton and five grandchildren.

The body will remain at the Wappner funeral home until 10 a. m. Tuesday when it will be removed to the church.

RITES TUESDAY

Mr. Sample, a paper cutter for the A. L. Garber company of Ashland, was a native and life resident of Ashland county. Funeral services for him will be held Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. at the Gilbert funeral home with burial in Ashland cemetery.

Mr. Sample was a member of the American Legion post at Ashland, the Eagles lodge and Trinity Lutheran church. Surviving are his wife, Maude; two sisters, Mrs. Alma McQuate and Mrs. Floyd Mumaw of Ashland; and three brothers, Andrew of Ashland; William of Ashland, R. D., and John of Polk.

The deaths of Mrs. Hostetler and Sample were the first to mar Ashland traffic records since 1947.

Mr. Ritz, an Attica farmer, died a few minutes after his car collided with a car driven by Charles Mitchell of Mansfield at 5 p. m. Sunday at State Route 598 and U. S. Route 30.

State highway patrolmen, who investigated the accident, said the fatality occurred three miles west of Crestline. Both cars, officers said, left the road and went into ditches on opposite sides of the road. Ritz was reported to have died of a broken neck.

Mrs. Ritz, riding with her husband, was reported in "serious" condition at Crestline Emergency hospital today where she is being X-rayed for back injuries.

The Mitchell brothers were reported in "fair" condition at the Crestline hospital where Charles is suffering from a broken nose and bruises and Joseph from a broken wrist. Both men suffered severe shock, attendants added.

Funeral services for Ritz, father of three small children, were pending today at the Chilcote funeral home in Attica.

Three Injured When Five Cars Derailed

BOWLING GREEN, VA., — (INS) — Five cars of the "Orange Blossom Special," crack Miami-to-New York train, were derailed today at Milford, Va., three miles from Bowling Green.

Railroad officials said that no one was killed in the accident, but three dining car waiters were sent to a hospital for treatment for shock.

Mr. Smucker died at Lakeside hospital in Cleveland Saturday following an operation for a brain tumor. He had been living at his son's home, Mansfield, R. D. 5, and was associated with his son at the studio.

Mr. Smucker was a former principal of Wooster high school.

In addition to his son here, he is survived by his mother, Mrs. M. C. Smucker of Smithville; another son, James Smucker, a missionary in India; a daughter, Mrs. Dayton Hulburt of Berea, Ky.; a brother, Jesse Smucker of Bluffton; a sister, Miss Anna Smucker of Smithville; and four granchildren.

The family has requested that flowers be omitted.

Santa Claus In Blue Aids Vets

CONNEAUT. — (INS) — Santa Claus, aided by Conneaut police, dropped a "better late than never" Christmas card and $170 into the stocking of ex-GI Robert Young today.

The money represented the amount donated to police for a fund to replace the $160 lost in a billfold by Young a few days before Christmas. A day before the loss he had become the father of a baby boy.

Truman Asks 41 Billion For Budget

Tells Nation Costs to Soar

rial decline in our international responsibilities."

So for the third time in a week he hammered hard for $4,000,000,000 more a year in taxes. He said last Wednesday most of it should come from corporations and people in the middle and higher income brackets.

"In a period of high prosperity," he said, "it is not sound public policy for the government to operate at a deficit."

Instead, he said, it is "vitally important" that the government have a surplus now for unexpected expenses, paying off the enormous debt, easing inflationary pressure and providing a sound financial footing for the future.

Actually, the government might not collect much more than half the $4,000,000,000 in the coming year. Mr. Truman figures the higher taxes might not go into effect until next July 1 and that there would be "the normal lag" in collections.

BIGGER PAYROLL TAX

He suggested an additional $2,000,000,00 in payroll taxes, on business and individuals, to finance his program of new or bigger social security benefits.

For one thing, he said, he wants the present 1 per cent rate on workers and their employers boosted to 1 1-2 per cent each next july 1. That is six months ahead of the schedule Congress set.

By the same date he wants "nearly" "all the 25,000,000 gainfully employed persons not now covered" brought into the old age insurance system. They would pay taxes, too.

He wants insurance for people temporarily or permanently disabled, aparently with those covered chipping in on the cost.

And he wants a higher ceiling on the income taxes for Social Security. Now only the first $3,000 of a person's income is taxes. There has been talk of hoisting the limit to $4,500.

All these changes, Mr. Truman estimated, would bring $1,700,000,000 into the federal till.

In addition, he is counting on raising an additional $260,000,000 for a new health insurance program with a payroll tax of 1-4 of 1 per cent each on companies and workers. But only $15,000,000 of that would be spent the first year.

Social Security taxes and payments are excluded from the budget because they are handled through trust funds. The government acts as banker, collecting the money and paying it out in benefits.

Mr. Truman said the budget contains "essential economic and social programs which should no longer be delayed." He included, for instance, $290,000,000 for aid to education, $160,000,000 for slum clearance and farm and low-rent housing, $13,500,000 to fight inflation.

There is $1,000,000 to pay for surveying the need for school buildings and studying ways of providing more chances for young people to get college educations.

Mr. Truman put in $725,000,000 for atomic energy, a $93,000,000 hike.

On the surface, the figures seem to show that the Air Forces got $2,000,000,000 of the $2,500,000,000 boost for all defense spending. But that is largely because the Air Forces have a separate budget for the first time since Congress set them up in a separate department under the armed forces unification law.

Stock at Sunset Hills Has Never Had a Taste of Water

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS

SUNSET HILLS, Va. —(UP)— Not one of the animals on the 7,100 acres of Sunset Hills ever had a drink of water.

This sprawling, wooded farm is home grounds for a small whiskey mill and, believe it or not, that has a lot to do with the drinking habits of the livestock. Some 450 head of cattle, 250 bacon-bogged hogs and 50 horses.

Not that the steers, pigs and hay-burners run loose around the place lapping up straight bourbon. They are fed wet mash—a residue from the distillery. From that they get whatever liquid animals need to keep well and happy. In fact, water would do more harm than good, as a wash for mash. It would bloat the animals.

The mash, by the way, does wonders for the livestock. A. Smith Bowman, aged 80, and his two sons, A. Smith jr., and E. DeLong, noted that the milk cows did a 30 per cent better job of filling milk pails on the food. The steers did better and the livestock markets are screaming for more mash-fed beef. The hogs got fatter and the horses seemed to be a lot more frisky in the pasture.

The animals themselves go for the mash. One proof of this came the other day when the elder Bowman sold a nag to one of his neighbors. The horse became so hungry for mash his new master had to tie him up to keep him from vaulting the fence every day to have lunch with his old friends.

The acres, where the fabulous Bowmans—southern gentlemen all —make a couple of concoctions for the liquor trade—are, in themselves, fantastic.

The place is located just 20 miles from teeming Washington, D. C. on part of what once was known as the "George Washington tract." Mr. W., of course, was one of the nation's first distillers.

The farm, populated by the Bowmans and all their help, is hard by the old Dominion railroad. Probably the only road in the world which stops at crossings to let the cars go ahead.

The engineer gives a couple of toots as he pulls up to the station, which also happens to be the post office. The Dominion makes four mail trips a day, which is as many as the capital itself gets from any one line.

The citizens wheel up to the post office and honk their horns. Out bounds postmaster - stationmaster Claude Yount, who personally hands each family its mail.

The 80 or so hired hands on the farm double in brass to run the place, when the occasion demands. The Bowmans think nothing of pulling a man away from his milk stool in the cow barn to pitch in and help turn out the 50 barrel-a-day production of good bourbon.

(Let's see: That's 2,000 gallons, or eight thousand full quarts and goodness knows how many hangovers per day.)

Almost everything needed to run the liquor factory is grown right there on the farm, including the wood that goes into the aging barrels.

The men with the most unusual jobs on the 7100 acres are Harry Elrod and Jim Powell. They have official titles: leak-hunters. That's just what it says. They spend eight hours a day smelling out leaks in barrels aging in the warehouses.

At so much a quart that could run into a lot of money.

Examiners Aid Vendors With Return

Sales Tax Reports Due By Jan. 31

Field examiners will be in the Mansfield sales tax office and other offices in the area soon to assist vendors in filing their tax reports for the last six months of 1948.

Officials of the Mansfield office said the reports must be filed with the state treasurer by Jan. 31 and that vendors must file returns even if no sales were made during the period.

They said that in filing their reports vendors are to bring a copy of their previous semi-annual report and a record of tax stamp purchases for the last half of 1948. They asked that the vendors come prepared to give information on all questions as they appear on the report.

SCHEDULE SET

The schedule of times and places where examiners will assist with filing, follows:

State Legion Head to Talk In Bucyrus

Past Commanders To Be Honored

BUCYRUS—Carl W. Smith of Kenton, state commander of the American Legion, will be the principal speaker at the annual past commanders' banquet of Col. Crawford Post of the American Legion to be held at the Legion home here Wednesday night.

Approximately 275 members are expected to attend the affar, which is the highlight of the post's social calendar.

In addition to State Commander Smith, many high-rank-in state and district Legion officials will be in attendance. Invitations also have been extended to commanders of Legion posts in Galion, Crestline and New Washington.

The post has had 30 commanders since its inception. A past commanders' badge will be presented to Arthur E. "Bud" Gallagher, immediate past commander, by Common Pleas Judge C. U. Ahl. Gallagher is the first World War II veteran to head the local post.

Toastmaster will be Attorney C. V. Vollrath. The meeting will be in charge of Post Commander William Dustman.

Past commanders to be honored include: Gavin Harris, E. Blair Ruhl, Lawrence Schott, Tom Henderson, J. C. Hazen, E. J. McMillen, Ralph Carle, Glen Senseney, Lloyd Adams, C. C. Richard, S. L. Powers, Russell Bash, George Davis, Albert Schiska, J. D. Sears, Harry Grose, S. U. Ahl, W. G. Beebe, George Dustman, Burlen Jacobs, Larry Schwein, John Wyer, Dr. R. J Caton, Ferris Mollenkopf, C. I. McNeal, Vaughn R. Turner, Joseph Kaupp, Frank Peppard, George Siebel and Gallagher. Five are deceased. They include Harris, Hazen, Carle, Jacobs and McNeal.

Girl Placed On Probation

A 15-year-old girl was placed on probation for the rest of the school year for habitual truancy in juvenile court today.

A complaint that the girl had attended school 29 days this year out of a total of 75 school days was filed by John Eisaman, Mansfield school attendance officer.

Her only explanation for her truancy was that she "didn't like school," juvenile court authorities said. Her mother told the court she was not aware of her daughter's habitual absence because she works.

The girl was required to report once a week to juvenile authorities during her period of probation and to attend school regularly. In case of absence she is required to present a doctor's certificate.

P-TA to Hear OSU Professor

Dr. Allan Griffin, former Mansfield resident, now associated with the faculty at Ohio State university, will speak at the January meeting of the Rebecca Grubaugh P-TA tomorrow at 7:30 p. m.

Dr. Griffin will speak on the theme, "When Is a Child Intelligent" and he is expected to bring out the fact that "book learning" is not the only way to judge intelligence, according to P-TA officials.

Wilbur Upson, president, will have charge of the meeting and refreshments will be served by Mrs. Michael Mecurio and Mrs. James Boyd.

Area Men Will Participate In Survey of Cooperatives

Two Mansfield area men will participate in Friday discussions on how Ohio's 312 purchasing and marketing cooperatives allocate and distribute patronage savings and raise capital for operations. The meeting is a two-day affair opening Thursday morning in the Four-State Cooperative Clinic in Columbus and sponsored by the Ohio State university extension unit.

U. S. Kreider, president of the National Farmers Equity Union at Ashland, and Leonard Melching of New Washington, will speak. Kreider will dwell on the obligation of directors and managers while Melching discusses forms of securities used in financing cooperative corporations.

Purpose of this survey, according to C. F. Christian, extension farm marketing specialist at the university, is to obtain information for use of special "workshop" committees that will convene at the Hotel Seneca on Wednesday.

Large numbers of Ohio professional men and cooperative leaders will participate in these workshop meetings, the reports on which will be presented on the clinic program.

"Allocation and Distribution of Savings of Cooperative Business" will be Thursday morning's theme, while Friday it will be "How Should Cooperatives Be Financed?"

Michael Robert, third child of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Bocka, 26 Blanche street, was born at 3:15 a. m. Jan. 1, but until the required time had elapsed for the filing of births on New Year's day, he couldn't be judged "Mansfield's First Baby."

The child will receive gifts from the following merchants: Kobacker's, Sears, Montgomery-Ward, Fox Jewelry, Lautsbaugh Pharmacy, Jones Memorial, Batson's, Jack and Jill Shop, M. O'Neil company, Ohio Public Service company, Ven-Mar Pharmacy, the Penn Auto and Sporting Goods store, and Scattergood's.

Coat, Pocketbook Stolen From Car

The theft of a coat and a pocketbook from a parked car early yesterday evening was reported to the sheriff's office by Miss Ruth Reyland, Mansfield, R. D 4 She discovered her loss, she told deputies, when she returned to her car after attending services at the East Mansfield church.

Mrs. Robert Hunt, 65 Grandview avenue, reported a prowler to sheriff's deputies early yesterday morning. When deputies arrived the prowler had fled.

Red Trial To Go Ahead

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The Supreme court today refused to interfere with the indictment and scheduled New York trial of 12 leaders of the American Communist party.

The 12 asked the Supreme Court to: cancel indictments against them, order a stay of their trial scheduled to begin in federal court January 17, and throw out a list of prospective jurors from which their trial jury may be drawn.

The Supreme court issued two brief orders announcing its refusal to interfere in the cases at this stage. It gave no reason.

The 12—all members of the national board of the Communist party in the United States—were indicted on charges of conspiracy to advocate the overthrow of the United States government by force and violence.

Opera Tenor Here Tonight

Third concert of the Mansfield Civic Music association's winter series will be staged tonight in John Simpson auditorium when Richard Tucker, famed Metropolitan tenor, appears here.

The concert is scheduled for 8:15 p. m. and is open to members only.

Howard McLaughlin president of the "Fishers of Men" club, sponsor of the meetings, will be in charge.

600 Children at Shelby Applaud Minstrel Preview

SHELBY — Approximately 600 school youngsters applauded and laughed as they viewed a dress rehearsal matinee of the Plantation Minstrel sponsored by the O'Brien Post, American Legion at the high school auditorium yesterday afternoon.

Ranging in ages from three-year-olds 'to seniors in high school, the youngsters laughed at the antics of the end men, applauded the efforts of the soloists and then sat back in their seats and gazed round-eyed at the "after-piece," or second act of the minstrel which weaved a colorful fantasy of plantation life.

The public will have its opportunity tonight and Tuesday evening when the show will be presented at 8 p. m.

New lines and specialties feature this year's show with Endmen Karl Giller, John Patrick, Dooley Roberts, George Zeiters, Raymond Zeiters and John Purdy giving Interlocutor James McBride a hard time of it

Included in the second act were Paul Braden, Al McGaw and son, Jimmie, in a specialty; a song and dance act by Margaret Garvin and Betty Reau, solo by Ruth Miller, and a duet by Dorothy Sharkey and Arthur Boyce

The high school girls' sextet, composed of Nancy Gump, Nancy Riley, Lou Ellen Fireoved, Shirley Burgeois, Margaret Garvin and Ethel Workman and a quartet of harmonizers, including Stacy Hahn, Robert Hurl, Don Wentz and Leon Smith appear in the second act.

Myra Cook, director, voiced her praise of the cast for yesterday's performance.

FRANKFURT —(INS)— The first high-ranking United States military government official to be investigated for possible disloyalty was ordered returned to the U. S. today to face a hearing.

He is Sam L. Wahrhaftig of Brooklyn, N. Y., one of military governor Gen Lucius D Clay's most important lieutenants.

Two Injured In City as Cars Crash on South Main Street

A Mansfield woman and a Warren man were injured at 7:45 a. m. today when the car in which they were riding collided with a car and then a utility pole on South Main street.

Admitted to General hospital, suffering from contusions, abrasions and lacerations were Miss Mary Keller, 36, of 252½ North Main street, and William Siler, 37, of Warren.

Arnold Kellum jr., 21 of Warren, driver of the car in which they were riding, found himself in his second session of trouble within a half hour.

Police said Kellum was arrested in South Boulevards, at 7:15 a. m. for speeding. Police brought the motorist back to the station where he posted $25 bond for appearance in traffic court Wednesday afternoon. A half hour later, police arrested Kellum for unsafe operation in connection with the accident and took him back to the station where he was held for the municipal court session.

Appearing before Municipal Judge H. H. Schettler, Kellum was fined $10 and costs on the speeding charge and $15 and costs for unsafe operation. His license was suspended for 60 days.

Police said Kellum's car, traveling south on Main street rammed the rear of a car operated by Richard A. Leather, 22 Flint street, who had stopped in the lane of traffic to make a left turn. After striking Leather's car, Kellum's car continued 54 feet into a utility pole on the west side of Main street.

Kellum, Leather and Leather's wife escaped injury.

Hedges P-TA To See Movies

The new projector, recently purchased by the Hedges P-TA, will be put into use for the first time Tuesday when members meet at the school for their January session.

AMERICAN FAMILY CLOSE-UP
As they go, so goes the nation!
TO GET THE CHILDREN TO COLLEGE—
The Hintons Tackle Anything!

Building houses to save money for college, making a trailer for fun . . . there's nothing this family won't turn their hand to! The "construction crew": amateur architect-builder Don Hinton and his sons Jack, 15; Jerry, 11.
The self-starting Hintons of East Peoria, Ill., don't "do without" if they can do it themselves! Although Don was married with only a few dollars in his pocket, he and Pauline set their hearts on seeing the kids through college . . . on making sure they had the things they'd missed when they were young! When the children were old enough, they were asked: "How's if we all team up?" Could the whole family have fun working things out together? Would they let lack of ready money stop them . . . ?

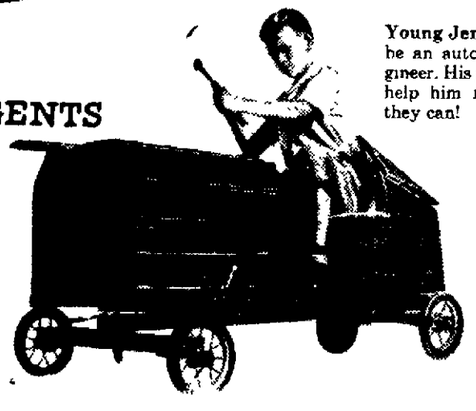
Don's pay as night shift foreman in a machinery plant covers their ordinary needs. But even wisely managed, it just isn't enough for the "important extras." That's where family teamwork comes in!

Everybody shares in building houses—Pauline paints; Jean, 13, helps. They've sold one house; live in another; are starting No. 3.

Jack's part-time grocery job and early-morning paper route add $18 a week to college fund. His share from house sale: $200.

But life isn't all work! Bargain second-hand boat and outboard take them fishing, camping. "We fix things up, make 'em do," says Don. "That way, a little money provides a lot of fun!"

Homemade music is fun, too! Jack plays trumpet, drums, piano. He's organizing a band for school dances—another money-making idea. Music will be his college major.

At family conferences, all the Hintons have a voice in money matters . . learn how they're doing. Life insurance is part of their money-managing. The Hintons started buying it early, already have $20,919 of life insurance protection. They budget $49.95 a month for it. From Don's regular pay of less than $400 a month, $30 also goes for the house, $100 for food, $20 for the car, Pauline says, "We certainly haven't had much to spend We've all worked to make ends meet But the children really feel they have a great deal."


Young Jerry hopes to be an automotive engineer. His parents will help him make it, if they can!
THE LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES AND THEIR AGENTS
BRING YOU THIS STORY BECAUSE... families like the Hintons show us one way that happiness is earned! You, yourself, probably know a family, right in your own town, that is getting ahead in the same typically American way. Such families prove to all of us that we can solve our own problems by our own efforts. . . . Their example shows too why it is so important for us to hold to our rights to think for ourselves, to work at what we like, to live as we choose. For what this country amounts to depends upon what happens to its homes!

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

The more modern civilization advances, the more difficulty there seems to be in getting ahead of the accumulated rubbish.

Some references are made to "the new Truman", while others speak of "the same old Harry"—which merely complicates an already confused situation.

Now It's 'Governor Lausche' Again

AS FRANK J. LAUSCHE returns today to the office of governor of Ohio, it seems quite likely that the next two years will determine whether or not he is to grow to national stature in the field of Democratic politics, as was predicted by his friends when he was re-elected governor last November by the impressive majority of more than 220,000 over Thomas J. Herbert, Republican, who defeated him in 1946.

Lausche overcame many difficulties during his upward climb in politics and possesses qualities of energy, determination and keen thinking which give him a unique place as a public figure.

It is interesting to note that, despite increasing costs, Governor Lausche is opposed to imposing any additional taxes, although he believes state revenues will start declining within the next couple of years.

It also appears that extent to which illegal commercialized gambling has spread over the state has been a matter of concern to Governor Lausche, who is expected to ask for authority to remove delinquent sheriffs, as he now has the power to remove mayors of cities who are derelict in law enforcement duties.

It is stated that Lausche has no objection to social betting and card-playing, but is uncompromising in his opposition to the various forms of gambling rackets which take money from persons who can ill-afford to lose it.

This subject is of local interest in view of the laxity of enforcement of anti-gambling laws since removal of the ban the first of last April, after illegal gambling had been stopped in Mansfield for two months, by order of Chief of Police Jesse J. Schwab, with sanction of Mayor Roy W. Vaughn.

Just what ropes were pulled to remove police interference with the common forms of commercialized gambling that have since been in operation here has never been revealed, but the situation is respectfully submitted to Governor Lausche as among those meriting investigation and action.

Give Heed To Weather Forecasts

THE DEATHS and experiences of hardship in the recent severe blizzard over Colorado, Wyoming and Nebraska should help to jolt the country into making better use of weather forecasting. This blizzard was predictable, and had been predicted. Yet most of the death, injury and suffering fell to the lot of travelers or occurred because of them. Victims of storm were largely the travelers themselves, those who tried to rescue them, and those who shared the hardships of stranded groups in isolated spots.

Almost everyone knows that an automobile is usually helpless on country roads in blizzard conditions, yet hundreds of motorists attempted to drive through the blizzard. The same thing happens in every blizzard. Whether the fault is in dissemination of weather forecasts, control of highway traffic, or education of individuals, it should be found and corrected.

Torrential rains, floods and violent windstorms also take their toll at other times of the year among persons who should have been in shelter, but were not.

Weather forecasting has become a highly accurate science. Some way should be found to put it to work so as to clear highways of traffic ahead of a storm which is likely to make them impassable.

Spreading Work By Shortening Week

A SPECIAL COMMITTEE of the American Federation of Labor is engaged in fostering the idea that if there should be a slackening in business the labor groups should immediately urge a thirty-hour week as a means of spreading available employment over a larger number of workers. The United Mine Workers has suggested a similar proposal for the soft coal industry, where there already have been signs of a reduction in operations because coal is being dug in some areas faster than it is being sold.

The idea is to cushion the effect of unemployment reduction. Instead of having a certain number of workers laid off, all would remain on the job but would get a proportionately smaller amount of work. Fixing a shorter work week would accomplish this in general effect. If the plan should be successful, mass unemployment such as occurred in the thirties may be prevented.

An important point is that the plan should not operate in such a way as to increase the cost of goods produced, for that would further reduce demand and aggravate slackening of business. Accordingly those who advocate this or any similar plan to spread work in an effort to prevent unemployment should be prepared also to recommend reduced earnings for individual workers. Even at that, the prospect for lower total pay, in event of a business decline, would seem better than total unemployment.

Scientists Disregarded By Hitler

WHY did not German scientists, among the greatest in the world, invent the atomic bomb? Dr. Werner Heisenberg, a German Nobel prize winner for physics, says that research had developed far, but that the scientists were never given much encouragement by Hitler or the German army.

The military authorities were all for win-the-war-quick methods. With them it was blitzkrieg or nothing. Any new device which would take a lot of valuable war materials for experimentation, and need several years before it could be developed, was out of the picture for the nazis.

Claude Callan cheerfully proclaims: "It doesn't make any difference how much higher the cost of living goes. It already is out of our reach."

Court's Decision On Closed Shop Issue

By MARQUIS CHILDS

NO DECISION of the Supreme Court for many years has stirred so much discussion and controversy as that upholding laws adopted in Arizona, Nebraska and North Carolina outlawing the closed shop. Coming from a court labeled New Deal by bitter critics of the Roosevelt administration, the decision caused tremendous surprise.

In a sober, careful opinion, Justice Hugo L. Black found that state legislatures were entirely within their powers in passing laws specifying that an individual need not belong to a trade union in order to take a job. The only dissent came from Justice Frank Murphy and that in the instance of the Arizona law.

Every union executive and organizer should read Justice Black's opinion and, equally important, the concurring opinion of Justice Felix Frankfurter.

From Justice Frankfurter, who has been slurred more than anyone on the court by a smear bund, has come a penetrating analysis of the rights of the individual in relation to the power of mass organization.

It throws a revealing light on the struggles of a society that seems to be moving toward greater and greater centralized authority.

Above all for the leaders of the mass unions with their 16,000,000 members, the Frankfurter opinion should cause soul searching. For the opinion raises the question whether with the great power that they now wield in American life the unions should rely upon the "power to compel rather than to persuade the allegiance of its reluctant members."

The plain truth is that unions in this country, or most of them, have put far too much reliance on the force of law to build and hold their membership. Historically, you can see why this happened—against the background of the implacable resistance of the biggest employers to any unions at all.

But it is nevertheless the big weakness of American trade unionism. The prime example is John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers, which operates through the closed shop, the check-off and total domination from the top.

Trade union managers now have political power that 20 years ago no one in this country remotely dreamed of. President Truman has asked the Democratic Congress to repeal the Taft-Hartley Act and that probably will be done fairly early in the session.

* * *

PRECISELY here at this peak of power the union managers need to take a long look at the road by which they came to power. Power held by law can be revoked by law.

The Frankfurter opinion quotes at some length from the late Justice Louis D. Brandeis, who feared and abhorred the power of coercion in mass wealth and mass organization. Justice Frankfurter quotes him as summing up his views on unionism as follows:

"It is not true that the 'success of a labor union necessarily means a perfect monopoly.' The union, in order to attain and preserve for its members industrial liberty, must be strong and stable. It need not include every member of the trade. Indeed, it is desirable for both the employer and the union that it should not.

"Absolute power leads to excesses and to weakness. Neither our character nor our intelligence can long bear the strain of unrestricted power. The union attains success when it reaches the ideal condition, and the ideal condition for a union is to be strong and stable, and yet to have in the trade outside its own ranks an appreciable number of men who are non-unionists.

"In any free community the diversity of character, of beliefs, of taste—indeed mere selfishness—will insure such a supply, if the enjoyment of this privilege of individualism is protected by law. Such a nucleus of unorganized labor will check the oppression by the union as the union checks oppression by the employers."

Those words were written nearly 40 years ago. But Justice Brandeis was so remarkably foresighted that they might have been written yesterday to apply directly to our time.

Justice Frankfurter points out that in the two countries where industrial democracy is most advanced, Great Britain and Sweden, unions do not for the most part put their reliance on laws that guarantee the closed shop and the check-off. They have built their unions on the more democratic and the more difficult process of persuading the workers that both his self-interest and his idealism are served by uniting with his fellows.

No one but the most blind and the most biased should have been surprised by the court's decision. It is in the long tradition of American freedom and individualism.

Civil Rights Not Rushed

By THOMAS L. STOKES

WASHINGTON — As far as civil rights legislation is concerned the Democratic leadership in Congress has adopted the policy that discretion is the better part of valor.

Nothing is expected on this front until well along in the present session of Congress despite President Truman's reiterated demand in his message for his civil rights program which he described as "among the highest purposes of government" and added "I stand squarely behind those proposals."

Delay is dictated by practical strategical reasons relating to the rest of the President's comprehensive legislative program and the matter of timing to get the best over-all results, that is, to get as much of the program on the statute books as early as possible.

The key to the civil rights program is the filibuster weapon that southern Democrats hold in the Senate. The first thing necessary then is to disarm the southerners.

Numerous proposals to limit debate, to eliminate endless filibustering, were submitted in the early days of this session.

But, as southerners demonstrated in the last Congress, it is possible under present Senate rules to filibuster even a motion to take up a proposal to limit debate.

The Senate Democratic leadership has decided that it does not want its victory session to begin with a protracted filibuster on the civil rights issue which would not only accentuate the schisms in party ranks and stir up presently latent bitterness, but also would hold back other parts of the President's program.

So an attack on the filibuster will be delayed, and consequently the civil rights program which is dammed up behind it.

* * *

Obligations Recognized.

UNDER legislative strategy now devised, it is the administration's objective to get as much of its social welfare programs as possible on the statute books as soon as possible.

The chief obstacle to this phase of the program was the veto power of the House rules committee and the balance of power held by southern conservatives on legislative committees. Both have been corrected.

This will open the way for early action on such measures as the long-range housing bill and the federal aid to education bill, both of which passed the Senate in the last Congress only to be bottled up in the House, and both of which have been re-introduced in the Senate in the new Congress and slated for early consideration.

The way for repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act and for increase of minimum wages and expansion of social security also should be eased by procedural reforms in the House and increase of administration members on House and Senate committees.

The President's proposed health insurance bill, an important part of his social welfare program, is headed for trouble and delay, but enactment of the other measures will make an impressive record and redeem pledges to labor which was such an important factor in the election. Measures for the benefit of farmers, who turned the tide in key midwestern states, also will be pushed ahead.

President Truman has no obligation whatever to the southerners whose position on civil rights was repudiated not only by the party's national convention but also in the election itself.

He and his leaders are aware of obligations in other directions, sealed by pledges in the platform and in the campaign, and realize that no excuses will be accepted if nothing has been accomplished two years from now when there will be a congressional election.

Looking Back

Twenty Years Ago Today

Thursday, Jan. 10, 1929.

Appropriation of $343,496 was voted by council to operate various city departments during year.

Olin M. Farber, 59, Mansfield attorney, died at his home, 125 Vennum avenue.

Mention was made that Ideal Electric company was exporting Mansfield-made motors to many foreign countries.

Birthday surprise party was given for Mrs. H. R. Beal, 409 Springmill street.

Dr. C. S. Wilmuth, 69, of 36 South Main street, died in Lakeside hospital, Cleveland, where he was undergoing treatment.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Hart, Glessner avenue, were surprised by friends on sixth wedding anniversary.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Sidelights On Appointment of Acheson

By DREW PEARSON

(Editor's Note — Drew Pearson today awards the brass ring, good for a free ride on the Washington Merry-Go-Round, to Dean Acheson, new secretary of state.)

* * *

WASHINGTON — Dean Acheson, son of the late Episcopal Suffragan Bishop of Connecticut, has followed with reasonable consistency an unadvertised but earnest desire to help his country. He has also cherished a desire, ever since he was a young lawyer in Washington, to clean up the horse-and buggy diplomacy of the state department.

That ambition probably started 20 years ago when Acheson was the attorney for a progressive non-career diplomat, Prentiss Gilbert, who tangled with the striped-pants career boys and was nearly given the gate. Never in his fondest dreams, however, did Dean Acheson, in those youthful days, think that he might become secretary of state. His real ambition was to sit on the Supreme court.

The fact that he now finds himself secretary of state is probably due not only to ability —of which he has plenty—but to an act of kindness to a little man who had just suffered a slashing political defeat.

In November 1946, Harry Truman's party lost control of both houses of Congress. The blow was so great that most observers predicted Truman could never be re-elected. Even some Democrats, especially Senator Fulbright of Arkansas, suggested that Truman resign.

Truman's trip back to Washington from Independence, Mo., where he voted, was almost like a funeral. When he arrived at the union station here, only one member of the cabinet was on hand to meet him, and he wasn't really a member. It was Acting Secretary of State Dean Acheson.

Acheson rode with the President back to the White House where Truman read over the singeing editorial comment and asked Acheson what he should do. Acheson was bold and courageous. He advised Truman to issue a dignified, diplomatic statement urging cooperation between Congress and the White House, pointing to other precedents where presidents had faced hostile congresses.

Truman agreed. Acheson drafted the statement—a masterpiece—and the two men have been close friends ever since.

* * *

FDR Fired Acheson.

ACHESON is one of the few men ever fired by Franklin Roosevelt who has staged a comeback.

His mentor throughout the years has been Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter, who once taught him law at Harvard, recommended him as secretary to the late Justice Brandeis, and urged FDR to make him solicitor general.

Instead FDR made Acheson undersecretary of the treasury, where he was out-of-step and miserable. Dean was more miserable when, one day while waiting in an anteroom of the White House, newsmen came out to tell him that Roosevelt had just announced his resignation.

He did not know until that moment that he had been fired.

* * *

Frankfurter Friend.

ALMOST every morning, the long, lanky Acheson can be seen walking two miles to work beside his old mentor, Justice Felix Frankfurter. It was Frankfurter who persuaded Roosevelt to take Acheson back seven years later as assistant secretary of state, and it was Frankfurter who also urged Acheson to ask the justice department to indict this columnist—a proposal which Acheson took up in cabinet meeting without success.

Acheson first joined the state department in 1941 as assistant secretary in charge of congressional relations. He was an immediate success. Congressmen like Speaker Sam Rayburn swore by him. Later, as undersecretary, he ran the state department during the long periods when Jimmy Byrnes was in Paris, London and Moscow. In that period the state department probably reached its peak efficiency.

* * *

Maryland Farmer.

DESPITE high position, Acheson has never put on any airs, still likes to do chores around his Maryland farm in old clothes on Sundays. He is up early every morning, despite the fact that he sometimes works until well after midnight. At the state department he juggled his own tray at the government cafeteria along with clerks and stenographers.

Acheson entered the state department pro-Russian—that is, in the sense that he felt the United States should do its best to cooperate with Russia, and that the peace of the world depended on the two countries.

It was not long after Potsdam, however, that he began to be disillusioned. Ever since, he has been a consistent, vigorous, bitter non-appeaser.

* * *

Friend of Hiss.

SOME Senators will doubtless look askance at Acheson's appointment because Alger Hiss and others, charged with purloining state department documents, served with him, and because Donald Hiss, brother of Alger, is now in the Acheson law firm. That law firm, incidentally, has represented such clients as J. P. Morgan, the Soviet government, and the anti-Soviet Iranian government.

No one who knows Acheson, however, would even remotely suspect him of any toleration of or connection with subversive influences.

Writer Visits Malabar Farm; Finds 'Commando Course' Rugged

MALABAR FARM—Any resemblance between this and any other farm in America is purely incidental.

To the best of my knowledge, this is the only acreage in the nation farmed to the limit with both typewriter and tractor. Louis Bromfield, the master of Malabar, may not have invented diversified farming, but he has added the typewriter to its implements.

It is true that cows are milked, beef fattened, chickens fed and furrows plowed at Malabar. But it is equally true that the cash crop as often as not includes a best seller humming the beauties of nature and the bounties of the good Ohio earth.

The best sellers "Pleasant Valley" and "Malabar Farm" have also limned the joys of the simple life with such rustic guests as Ina Claire, Humphrey Bogart, Lauren Bacall, Mrs. James A. Farley, innumerable "men of distinction" and ladies with coronets on their shifts.

In fact, Malabar runs Times Square a close second as the cross roads of the world. Out of sheer habit, the station wagon meets all the trains. It shuttles to and fro day after day with habitues of Broadway, Hollywood, Park Avenue, Paris, London, Johannesburg, Calcutta and way points.

Thoughtless persons, reading of this constant ebb and flow of glamour, have been known to say: "The poor Bromfields! How do they stand it?"

Nonsense! As a seasoned guest at Malabar, I ask, in all conscience "How do we—the guests—stand it?" As free-loaders and star-boarders, we have been literary fodder long enough for the five Bromfields—mother, father and three daughters.

It is high time one of us got a word in edgewise, a well-nigh impossible task at Malabar when all the Bromfields are in good voice and full cry.

* * *

Great Endurance Required.

THIS is a household of rugged individualists in which a timid guest who operates under an Emily Post license wouldn't survive 24-hours. Guests who hope to hold their own must be resilient, resourceful, uninhibited and inured to hardship.

It is probably difficult at first glance to associate hardship with a 20-room farmhouse in which luxury is a built-in feature and in which the food, beds and hospitality are superb.

But the unwary guest is apt to be trapped into going over each and every one of his 1,000 acres with Mr. B, as he is known in these parts. Most innocent city slickers think of Ohio as a flat state. Nothing can be more erroneous.

At least Mr. B's section is filled with sharp hills, deep canyons, water hazards, barb-wire entanglements, and pastures filled with malevolent cows.

The tour has long since become known as the "Commando Course" and is believed to be the one copied by the Marine Corps for its training in jungle warfare.

The first—and only—time I was ever dragged into this grand tour, I was rolling under the eightieth barb-wire fence when Mr. B looked at me reproachfully and said that Colleen Moore had worn a sable coat when she, poor dupe, had set out to see the farm.

I pointed out that I had just given my best Bergdoff-Goodman dress to the cause, and anyway, it was August. But he was not mollified. When I finally staggered back to the house, a piteous and tattered object, Mr. B bitterly complained to Mary, the wife to whom his guests look for consolation and strength, that I was not the dressy type and had lowered the tone of the whole tour.

One more word about the tour for the unwary. There lurks in one pasture a trick horse, trained to nudge on laggard, exhausted guests. Occasionally, if both ladies and gentlemen are in the party, the former are apt to wax indignant at such nudging since the horse is a sly creature, trained to slip up on his victim unawares.

I was a guest at Malabar one golden day when one of Hollywood's more glamorous stars returned from the tour more dead than alive. Maddened by the "Commando Course," the heat, the brambles and finally the nudging, she had turned in fury to slap the man struggling in the rear.

"Only imagine my embarrassment," she cried as she burst into tears, "to find myself slapping an innocent horse!"

Farmer's Diary

As Cold 'Strengthens'

By CALVIN A. BYERS

"When the days begin to lengthen, then the cold begins to strengthen", is an old Pennsylvania Dutch saying. And after New Year's day, every farm family looks forward to a short period of real winter, with "spring not far behind."

Just as the shortening of the days as winter approaches brings a kind of grimness with it, so the lengthening of the days, after the winter solstice, when the sun moves northward again, starts the new year toward hopeful warmth and flowers.

All winter the lantern is necessary for barn chores and to milk, at morning and evening. Our barn is not yet electrically wired. When the days get long enough so that chores can be done by daylight it marks the winter as finished and the springtime close at hand.

This time of year, a person can easily understand why sun worship had many primitive followers.

"The trees don't freeze, Daddy, why?" asked the youngest boy.

"They do freeze," I said, "But the sap in the cambium layer of the tree seeps out during autumn, leaving the living part full of gluey substance that does not expand sufficiently to damage the tree even in zero weather."

"It makes its own anti-freeze?" said the boy. "Hm!"

"Something like that. Living trees do not freeze, dead ones do!"

"Do buds freeze, too?"

"Buds are damaged by a late freeze, after several springlike days," I said. "If you cut a bud in winter and look at it under a microscope, you will not find ice. But a few days of sunshine brings more sap into the cells, and then they may freeze. Neither the warmth nor the cold alone does the harm, it is the unseasonable warmth, followed by the cold."

"I found out something about the oak log we cut," remarked the second boy. "It buzzed nice, and split easy, but it was frozen then. When mother put it into the range, it didn't burn very well. It takes a lot of kindling to make it hot enough for burning. If we'd known that, we wouldn't have been in such a hurry to drag so much of it down here."

"We learned the hard way," said another brother, soberly.

LIFE'S LIKE THAT

"Why can't I have time off from school to get a haircut . . . It grew on your time, didn't it?"

Timely Editorial

Suggestion To Samson.

One of the Hollywood reporters tells of the problems Cecil B. de Mille is having in filming the great biblical story, "Samson and Delilah." Carpenters built a temple which cost $30,000 which Samson was supposed to pull down about the ears and heads of the conquering Philistines.

Samson pulled and tugged but the temple only came down part way. The film was spoiled. It all had to be redone.

To us, this was poor planning. DeMille should have put Samson in one of the many $10,000 jerry-built homes for veterans that have been built most anywhere in the country. It would have come down on the first pull.—Cleveland Press.

Horoscope

For Tuesday, January 11
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

A DIFFICULT and complicated day may tax the ingenuity and sound judgment, especially in a dangerous impasse, in which the feelings and emotions might urge to strange adventures, disruption, separations or estrangements. These affect business as well as purely personal relations, in which the totally unexpected may arise for quick decision. While there may be delays, disappointments and stubborn obstacles to thwart and annoy, yet honest and forthright attack might prove of unexpected benefit. Prompt and direct action may win out.

For the Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may run into a year to tax the good judgment, skill and sound technique in a difficult or stagnant situation, holding threat of disruption, delays, estrangements, with feelings and emotions running away with good judgment. The romantic or intellectual life may prove devastating, erratic, with strife, loss or sorrow to pay penalty for rash or tumultuous conduct.

Emma Will Wed to Kenneth Parr Sunday In Crestline

CRESTLINE—The Calvary Evangelical Reformed church was the scene of the wedding Sunday of Miss Emma Louise Will and Kenneth A. Parr. The nuptials were spoken at 2:30 o'clock before an altar decorated with beauty baskets of yellow and white chrysanthemums, ferns and palms. Two seven-branch candelabra lighted the scene. The Rev. W. L. Margard officiated for the double ring ceremony.

Miss Will is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Will, Crestline, and Mr. Parr, Corbin, Kentucky, is the son of Mrs. Mollie Parr, Tulsa, Oklahoma.

A program of music preceded the ceremony with Mrs. M. V. Snyder at the organ, Paul Furry was the soloist.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father. She wore a lovely gown of white slipper satin, fashioned with a basque waist and boat neckline. The long sleeves came to points over the hands. The yoke was of marquisette edged with insert sheering which also encircled the hip line. The hoop skirt fell into a long train. The bride's colonial bridal hat was of matching satin. It was tied under the chin and attached to a fingertip veil The only jewelry worn by Miss Will was a single strand of pearls.

The bridal bouquet was of white gardenias and talisman roses—made in a semi-colonial arrangement.

Mrs. Howard Delventhal of Napoleon was the matron of honor She wore a gown of yellow silk crepe made with a square neckline, cap sleeves and a bustle back. She wore mitts and a floral headpiece to match her dress. Judy Muntis was the flower girl and was attired in a blue silk taffeta colonial gown with a white lace trim and tiny pink bows at the neckline. She wore a blue taffeta colonial hat which tied under the chin.

The matron of honor carried a bouquet of yellow and white pom poms The flower girl carried pink sweetpeas.

Mrs. Will chose a grey print dress for her daughter's wedding. She wore black accessories with her outfit. Mrs. Will's corsage was of pink rosebuds.

Harold Delventhal, Napoleon, served as best man.

The guests were ushered to their pews by Joseph Wills, brother of the bride, and David Malaby of Crestline.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's aunt, Miss Emma Winters, 340 North Pearl street, for 100 friends and relatives. The serving table was centered with a four-tiered cake decorated with rosebuds and topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom. The cake was surrounded with white gardenias. White lighted tapers in double crystal holders were placed at either end of the table.

When the couple left for their honeymoon to an undisclosed destination, the bride wore a brown suit with brown accessories topped with a green coat. She had a corsage of gardenias and roses. The couple will be at home in Corbin.

The bride graduated from Crestline high school and the Flower hospital in Toledo. The bridegroom is a graduate of the Tulsa high school, Tulsa, Oklahoma, and the University of Oklahoma. He is employed by the Sexton Food company as a commercial salesman, working out of Chicago.

Out-of-town guests present at the wedding were from Toledo, Detroit, Napoleon, Shelby, Tiro and Galion.

The more modern civilization advances, the more difficulty there seems to be in getting ahead of the accumulated rubbish.

Some references are made to "the new Truman", while others speak of "the same old Harry"—which merely complicates an already confused situation.

Now It's 'Governor Lausche' Again

AS FRANK J. LAUSCHE returns today to the office of governor of Ohio, it seems quite likely that the next two years will determine whether or not he is to grow to national stature in the field of Democratic politics, as was predicted by his friends when he was re-elected governor last November by the impressive majority of more than 220,000 over Thomas J. Herbert, Republican, who defeated him in 1946.

Lausche overcame many difficulties during his upward climb in politics and possesses qualities of energy, determination and keen thinking which give him a unique place as a public figure.

It is interesting to note that, despite increasing costs, Governor Lausche is opposed to imposing any additional taxes, although he believes state revenues will start declining within the next couple of years.

It also appears that extent to which illegal commercialized gambling has spread over the state has been a matter of concern to Governor Lausche, who is expected to ask for authority to remove delinquent sheriffs, as he now has the power to remove mayors of cities who are derelict in law enforcement duties.

It is stated that Lausche has no objection to social betting and card-playing, but is uncompromising in his opposition to the various forms of gambling rackets which take money from persons who can ill-afford to lose it.

This subject is of local interest in view of the laxity of enforcement of anti-gambling laws since removal of the ban the first of last April, after illegal gambling had been stopped in Mansfield for two months, by order of Chief of Police Jesse J. Schwab, with sanction of Mayor Roy W. Vaughn.

Just what ropes were pulled to remove police interference with the common forms of commercialized gambling that have since been in operation here has never been revealed, but the situation is respectfully submitted to Governor Lausche as among those meriting investigation and action.

Give Heed To Weather Forecasts

THE DEATHS and experiences of hardship in the recent severe blizzard over Colorado, Wyoming and Nebraska should help to jolt the country into making better use of weather forecasting. This blizzard was predictable, and had been predicted. Yet most of the death, injury and suffering fell to the lot of travelers or occurred because of them. Victims of storm were largely the travelers themselves, those who tried to rescue them, and those who shared the hardships of stranded groups in isolated spots.

Almost everyone knows that an automobile is usually helpless on country roads in blizzard conditions, yet hundreds of motorists attempted to drive through the blizzard. The same thing happens in every blizzard. Whether the fault is in dissemination of weather forecasts, control of highway traffic, or education of individuals, it should be found and corrected.

Torrential rains, floods and violent windstorms also take their toll at other times of the year among persons who should have been in shelter, but were not.

Weather forecasting has become a highly accurate science. Some way should be found to put it to work so as to clear highways of traffic ahead of a storm which is likely to make them impassable.

Spreading Work By Shortening Week

A SPECIAL COMMITTEE of the American Federation of Labor is engaged in fostering the idea that if there should be a slackening in business the labor groups should immediately urge a thirty-hour week as a means of spreading available employment over a larger number of workers. The United Mine Workers has suggested a similar proposal for the soft coal industry, where there already have been signs of a reduction in operations because coal is being dug in some areas faster than it is being sold.

The idea is to cushion the effect of unemployment reduction. Instead of having a certain number of workers laid off, all would remain on the job but would get a proportionately smaller amount of work. Fixing a shorter work week would accomplish this in general effect. If the plan should be successful, mass unemployment such as occurred in the thirties may be prevented.

An important point is that the plan should not operate in such a way as to increase the cost of goods produced, for that would further reduce demand and aggravate slackening of business. Accordingly those who advocate this or any similar plan to spread work in an effort to prevent unemployment should be prepared also to recommend reduced earnings for individual workers. Even at that, the prospect for lower total pay, in event of a business decline, would seem better than total unemployment.

Scientists Disregarded By Hitler

WHY did not German scientists, among the greatest in the world, invent the atomic bomb? Dr. Werner Heisenberg, a German Nobel prize winner for physics, says that research had developed far, but that the scientists were never given much encouragement by Hitler or the German army.

The military authorities were all for win-the-war-quick methods. With them it was blitzkrieg or nothing. Any new device which would take a lot of valuable war materials for experimentation, and need several years before it could be developed, was out of the picture for the nazis.

Claude Callan cheerfully proclaims: "It doesn't make any difference how much higher the cost of living goes. It already is out of our reach."

Court's Decision On Closed Shop Issue

By MARQUIS CHILDS

NO DECISION of the Supreme Court for many years has stirred so much discussion and controversy as that upholding laws adopted in Arizona, Nebraska and North Carolina outlawing the closed shop. Coming from a court labeled New Deal by bitter critics of the Roosevelt administration, the decision caused tremendous surprise.

In a sober, careful opinion, Justice Hugo L. Black found that state legislatures were entirely within their powers in passing laws specifying that an individual need not belong to a trade union in order to take a job. The only dissent came from Justice Frank Murphy and that in the instance of the Arizona law.

Every union executive and organizer should read Justice Black's opinion and, equally important, the concurring opinion of Justice Felix Frankfurter.

From Justice Frankfurter, who has been slurred more than anyone on the court by a smear bund, has come a penetrating analysis of the rights of the individual in relation to the power of mass organization.

It throws a revealing light on the struggles of a society that seems to be moving toward greater and greater centralized authority.

Above all for the leaders of the mass unions with their 16,000,000 members, the Frankfurter opinion should cause soul searching. For the opinion raises the question whether with the great power that they now wield in American life the unions should rely upon the "power to compel rather than to persuade the allegiance of its reluctant members."

The plain truth is that unions in this country, or most of them, have put far too much reliance on the force of law to build and hold their membership. Historically, you can see why this happened—against the background of the implacable resistance of the biggest employers to any unions at all.

But it is nevertheless the big weakness of American trade unionism. The prime example is John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers, which operates through the closed shop, the check-off and total domination from the top.

Trade union managers now have political power that 20 years ago no one in this country remotely dreamed of. President Truman has asked the Democratic Congress to repeal the Taft-Hartley Act and that probably will be done fairly early in the session.

* * *

PRECISELY here at this peak of power the union managers need to take a long look at the road by which they came to power. Power held by law can be revoked by law.

The Frankfurter opinion quotes at some length from the late Justice Louis D. Brandeis, who feared and abhorred the power of coercion in mass wealth and mass organization. Justice Frankfurter quotes him as summing up his views on unionism as follows:

"It is not true that the 'success of a labor union necessarily means a perfect monopoly.' The union, in order to attain and preserve for its members industrial liberty, must be strong and stable. It need not include every member of the trade. Indeed, it is desirable for both the employer and the union that it should not.

'Absolute power leads to excesses and to weakness. Neither our character nor our intelligence can long bear the strain of unrestricted power. The union attains success when it reaches the ideal condition, and the ideal condition for a union is to be strong and stable, and yet to have in the trade outside its own ranks an appreciable number of men who are non-unionists.

"In any free community the diversity of character, of beliefs, of taste—indeed mere selfishness—will insure such a supply, if the enjoyment of this privilege of individualism is protected by law. Such a nucleus of unorganized labor will check the oppression by the union as the union checks oppression by the employers."

Those words were written nearly 40 years ago. But Justice Brandeis was so remarkably foresighted that they might have been written yesterday to apply directly to our time.

Justice Frankfurter points out that in the two countries where industrial democracy is most advanced, Great Britain and Sweden, unions do not for the most part put their reliance on laws that guarantee the closed shop and the check-off. They have built their unions on the more democratic and the more difficult process of persuading the workers that both his self-interest and his idealism are served by uniting with his fellows.

No one but the most blind and the most biased should have been surprised by the court's decision. It is in the long tradition of American freedom and individualism.

Viewing the National Scene

Civil Rights Not Rushed

By THOMAS L. STOKES

WASHINGTON — As far as civil rights legislation is concerned the Democratic leadership in Congress has adopted the policy that discretion is the better part of valor.

Nothing is expected on this front until well along in the present session of Congress despite President Truman's reiterated demand in his message for his civil rights program which he described as "among the highest purposes of government" and added "I stand squarely behind those proposals."

Delay is dictated by practical strategical reasons relating to the rest of the President's comprehensive legislative program and the matter of timing to get the best over-all results, that is, to get as much of the program on the statute books as early as possible.

The key to the civil rights program is the filibuster weapon that southern Democrats hold in the Senate. The first thing necessary then is to disarm the southerners.

Numerous proposals to limit debate, to eliminate endless filibustering, were submitted in the early days of this session.

But, as southerners demonstrated in the last Congress, it is possible under present Senate rules to filibuster even a motion to take up a proposal to limit debate.

The Senate Democratic leadership has decided that it does not want its victory session to begin with a protracted filibuster on the civil rights issue which would not only accentuate the schisms in party ranks and stir up presently latent bitterness, but also would hold back other parts of the President's program.

So an attack on the filibuster will be delayed, and consequently the civil rights program which is dammed up behind it.

* * *

Obligations Recognized.

UNDER legislative strategy now devised, it is the administration's objective to get as much of its social welfare programs as possible on the statute books as soon as possible.

The chief obstacle to this phase of the program was the veto power of the House rules committee and the balance of power held by southern conservatives on legislative committees. Both have been corrected.

This will open the way for early action on such measures as the long-range housing bill and the federal aid to education bill, both of which passed the Senate in the last Congress only to be bottled up in the House, and both of which have been re-introduced in the Senate in the new Congress and slated for early consideration.

The way for repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act and for increase of minimum wages and expansion of social security also should be eased by procedural reforms in the House and increase of administration members on House and Senate committees.

The President's proposed health insurance bill, an important part of his social welfare program, is headed for trouble and delay, but enactment of the other measures will make an impressive record and redeem pledges to labor which was such an important factor in the election. Measures for the benefit of farmers, who turned the tide in key midwestern states, also will be pushed ahead.

President Truman has no obligation whatever to the southerners whose position on civil rights was repudiated not only by the party's national convention but also in the election itself.

He and his leaders are aware of obligations in other directions, sesied by pledges in the platform and in the campaign, and realize that no excuses will be accepted if nothing has been accomplished two years from now when there will be a congressional election.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Sidelights On Appointment of Acheson

By DREW PEARSON

(Editor's Note — Drew Pearson today awards the brass ring, good for a free ride on the Washington Merry-Go-Round, to Dean Acheson, new secretary of state.)

* * *

WASHINGTON — Dean Acheson, son of the late Episcopal Suffragan Bishop of Connecticut, has followed with reasonable consistency an unadvertised but earnest desire to help his country. He has also cherished a desire, ever since he was a young lawyer in Washington, to clean up the horse-and buggy diplomacy of the state department.

That ambition probably started 20 years ago when Acheson was the attorney for a progressive non-career diplomat, Prentiss Gilbert, who tangled with the striped-pants career boys and was nearly given the gate. Never in his fondest dreams, however, did Dean Acheson, in those youthful days, think that he might become secretary of state. His real ambition was to sit on the Supreme court.

The fact that he now finds himself secretary of state is probably due not only to ability —of which he has plenty—but to an act of kindness to a little man who had just suffered a slashing political defeat.

In November 1946, Harry Truman's party lost control of both houses of Congress. The blow was so great that most observers predicted Truman could never be re-elected. Even some Democrats, especially Senator Fulbright of Arkansas, suggested that Truman resign.

Truman's trip back to Washington from Independence, Mo., where he voted, was almost like a funeral. When he arrived at the union station here, only one member of the cabinet was on hand to meet him, and he wasn't really a member. It was Acting Secretary of State Dean Acheson.

Acheson rode with the President back to the White House where Truman read over the singeing editorial comment and asked Acheson what he should do. Acheson was bold and courageous. He advised Truman to issue a dignified, diplomatic statement urging cooperation between Congress and the White House, pointing to other precedents where presidents had faced hostile congresses.

Truman agreed. Acheson drafted the statement—a masterpiece—and the two men have been close friends ever since.

* * *

FDR Fired Acheson.

ACHESON is one of the few men ever fired by Franklin Roosevelt who has staged a comeback.

His mentor throughout the years has been Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter, who once taught him law at Harvard, recommended him as secretary to the late Justice Brandeis, and urged FDR to make him solicitor general.

Instead FDR made Acheson undersecretary of the treasury, where he was out-of-step and miserable. Dean was more miserable when, one day while waiting in an anteroom of the White House, newsmen came out to tell him that Roosevelt had just announced his resignation.

He did not know until that moment that he had been fired.

* * *

Frankfurter Friend.

ALMOST every morning, the long, lanky Acheson can be seen walking two miles to work beside his old mentor, Justice Felix Frankfurter. It was Frankfurter who persuaded Roosevelt to take Acheson back seven years later as assistant secretary of state, and it was Frankfurter who also urged Acheson to ask the justice department to indict this columnist—a proposal which Acheson took up in cabinet meeting without success.

Acheson first joined the state department in 1941 as assistant secretary in charge of congressional relations. He was an immediate success. Congressmen like Speaker Sam Rayburn swore by him. Later, as undersecretary, he ran the state department during the long periods when Jimmy Byrnes was in Paris, London and Moscow. In that period the state department probably reached its peak efficiency.

* * *

Maryland Farmer.

DESPITE high position, Acheson has never put on any airs, still likes to do chores around his Maryland farm in old clothes on Sundays. He is up early every morning, despite the fact that he sometimes works until well after midnight. At the state department he juggled his own tray at the government cafeteria along with clerks and stenographers.

Acheson entered the state department pro-Russian—that is, in the sense that he felt the United States should do its best to cooperate with Russia, and that the peace of the world depended on the two countries.

It was not long after Potsdam, however, that he began to be disillusioned. Ever since, he has been a consistent, vigorous, bitter nonappeaser.

* * *

Friend of Hiss.

SOME Senators will doubtless look askance at Acheson's appointment because Alger Hiss and others, charged with purloining state department documents, served with him, and because Donald Hiss, brother of Alger, is now in the Acheson law firm. That law firm, incidentally, has represented such clients as J. P. Morgan, the Soviet government, and the anti-Soviet Iranian government.

No one who knows Acheson, however, would even remotely suspect him of any toleration of or connection with subversive influences.

Writer Visits Malabar Farm; Finds 'Commando Course' Rugged

MALABAR FARM—Any resemblance between this and any other farm in America is purely incidental.

To the best of my knowledge, this is the only acreage in the nation farmed to the limit with both typewriter and tractor. Louis Bromfield, the master of Malabar, may not have invented diversified farming, but he has added the typewriter to its implements.

It is true that cows are milked, beef fattened, chickens fed and furrows plowed at Malabar. But it is equally true that the cash crop as often as not includes a best seller hymning the beauties of nature and the bounties of the good Ohio earth.

The best sellers "Pleasant Valley" and "Malabar Farm" have also limned the joys of the simple life with such rustic guests as Ina Claire, Humphrey Bogart, Lauren Bacall, Mrs. James A. Farley, innumerable "men of distinction" and ladies with coronets on their shifts.

In fact, Malabar runs Times Square a close second as the cross roads of the world. Out of sheer habit, the station wagon meets all the trains. It shuttles to and fro day after day with habitues of Broadway, Hollywood, Park Avenue, Paris, London, Johannesburg, Calcutta and way points.

Thoughtless persons, reading of this constant ebb and flow of glamour, have been known to say: "The poor Bromfields! How do they stand it?"

Nonsense! As a seasoned guest at Malabar, I ask, in all conscience "How do we—the guests—stand it?" As free-loaders and star-boarders, we have been literary fodder long enough for the five Bromfields—mother, father and three daughters.

It is high time one of us got a word in edgewise, a well-nigh impossible task at Malabar when all the Bromfields are in good voice and full cry.

Great Endurance Required.

THIS is a household of rugged individualists in which a timid guest who operates under an Emily Post license wouldn't survive 24-hours. Guests who hope to hold their own must be resilient, resourceful, uninhibited and inured to hardship.

It is probably difficult at first glance to associate hardship with a 20-room farmhouse in which luxury is a built-in feature and in which the food, beds and hospitality are superb.

But the unwary guest is apt to be trapped into going over each and every one of his 1,000 acres with Mr. B, as he is known in these parts. Most innocent city slickers think of Ohio as a flat state. Nothing can be more erroneous.

At least Mr. B's section is filled with sharp hills, deep canyons, water hazards, barb-wire entanglements, and pastures filled with malevolent cows.

The tour has long since become known as the "Commando Course" and is believed to be the one copied by the Marine Corps for its training in jungle warfare.

The first—and only—time I was ever dragged into this grand tour, I was rolling under the eighteen barb-wire fence when Mr. B looked at me reproachfully and said that Colleen Moore had worn a sable coat when she, poor dupe, had set out to see the farm.

I pointed out that I had just given my best Bergdoff-Goodman dress to the cause, and anyway, it was August. But he was not mollified. When I finally staggered back to the house, a piteous and tattered object, Mr. B bitterly complained to Mary, the wife to whom his guests look for consolation and strength, that I was not the dressy type and had lowered the tone of the whole tour.

One more word about the tour for the unwary. There lurks in one pasture a trick horse, trained to nudge on laggard, exhausted guests. Occasionally, if both ladies and gentlemen are in the party, the former are apt to wax indignant at such nudging since the horse is a sly creature, trained to slip up on his victim unawares.

I was a guest at Malabar one golden day when one of Hollywood's more glamorous stars returned from the tour more dead than alive. Maddened by the "Commando Course," the heat, the brambles and finally the nudging, she had turned in fury to slap the man struggling in the rear.

"Only imagine my embarrassment," she cried as she burst into tears, "to find myself slapping an innocent horse!"

Farmer's Diary

As Cold 'Strengthens'

By CALVIN A. BYERS

"When the days begin to lengthen, then the cold begins to strengthen", is an old Pennsylvania Dutch saying. And after New Year's day, every farm family looks forward to a short period of real winter, with "spring not far behind."

Just as the shortening of the days as winter approaches brings a kind of grimness with it, so the lengthening of the days, after the winter solstice, when the sun moves northward again, starts the new year toward hopeful warmth and flowers.

All winter the lantern is necessary for barn chores and to milk, at morning and evening. Our barn is not yet electrically wired. When the days get long enough so that chores can be done by daylight it marks the winter as finished and the springtime close at hand.

This time of year, a person can easily understand why sun worship had many primitive followers.

Great mounds, at Newark, Ohio, a few miles south of us, are arranged to catch and hold the greatest scope of sunshine. Here the early Indians gathered for religious ceremonials.

"The trees don't freeze, Daddy, why?" asked the youngest boy.

"They do freeze," I said. "But the sap in the cambium layer of the tree seeps out during autumn, leaving the living part full of gluey substance that does not expand sufficiently to damage the tree even in zero weather."

"It makes its own anti-freeze?" said the boy. "Hm!"

"Something like that. Living trees do not freeze, dead ones do."

"Do buds freeze, too?"

"Buds are damaged by a late freeze, after several springlike days," I said. "If you cut a bud in winter and look at it under a microscope, you will not find ice. But a few days of sunshine brings more sap into the cells, and then they may freeze. Neither the warmth nor the cold alone does the harm, it is the unseasonable warmth, followed by the cold."

"I found out something about the oak log we cut," remarked the second boy. "It buzzed nice, and split easy, but it was frozen then. When mother put it into the range, it didn't burn very well. It takes a lot of kindling to make it hot enough for burning. If we'd known that, we wouldn't have been in such a hurry to drag so much of it down here."

"We learned the hard way," said another brother, soberly.

LIFE'S LIKE THAT

"Why can't I have time off from school to get a haircut . . . It grew on your time, didn't it?"

Timely Editorial

Suggestion To Samson.

One of the Hollywood reporters tells of the problems Cecil B. de Mille is having in filming the great biblical story, "Samson and Delilah." Carpenters built a temple which cost $30,000 which Samson was supposed to pull down about the ears and heads of the conquering Philistines.

Samson pulled and tugged but the temple only came down part way. The film was spoiled. It all had to be redone.

To us, this was poor planning. DeMille should have put Samson in one of the many $10,000 jerry-built homes for veterans that have been built most anywhere in the country. It would have come down on the first pull.—Cleveland Press.

Dinner Party at Tearoom Fetes Pandora Heads

A dinner party at Mrs. Staiger's tearoom preceded installation services for newly-elected officers of the Pandora Dance club.

Heading the club for the ensuing year will be Mr. and Mrs. Harold Oakes, re-elected co-presidents; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Posa, secretary-treasurer; Mr. and Mrs. Russell Seymour and Mrs. Lorenzo Kriter of Galion, all of whom were on the committees last year; Mr. and Mrs. Louis Houston, and Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Ellis of Shelby.

The dinner party was served to the new officers as well as to those who served during the past year. These officers were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fair, co-presidents; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Barkdull, of Shelby, and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Bonnell.

The next affair for the group will be a Valentine Dance on Wednesday, Feb. 9, in the Grotto hall.

Rev. Sheriff Officiates For Ceremony

Miss Mary Geary and David Weaver exchanged nuptial vows Friday at 8:30 p. m. in St. Matthew's Lutheran church. The Rev. Charles Sheriff officiated for the single ring ceremony before an altar decorated with two beauty baskets of mixed bouquets of gladioli.

Miss Geary is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. M Campbell, Bellville, and Mr. Weaver is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Weaver, 587 Park avenue west.

The bride wore a navy blue gabardine suit with green accessories. She had a corsage of white carnations.

Mrs. James Voyik, friend of the couple, was Miss Geary's only attendant. She wore a navy blue faille dress with black accessories. Her corsage was of red carnations.

Mrs. Campbell wore a black and white dotted two piece dress with black accessories for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Weaver wore a grey dress with brown accessories.

James Voyik served as best man

A reception for 25 guests was held at the home of Mrs. Frank Cave, West Third street, immediately following the ceremony.

The couple spent a short honeymoon in Cleveland. They are residing in Bellville.

Mrs. Weaver is a graduate of Bellville high school and is employed at Richman Brothers. Mr. Weaver graduated from Mansfield Senior high school and attended Ohio State university. He is an employe of the Ideal Electric company.

Emma Will Wed to Kenneth Parr Sunday In Crestline

CRESTLINE—The Calvary Evangelical Reformed church was the scene of the wedding Sunday of Miss Emma Louise Will and Kenneth A. Parr. The nuptials were spoken at 2:30 o'clock before an altar decorated with beauty baskets of yellow and white chrysanthemums, ferns and palms. Two seven-branch candelabra lighted the scene. The Rev. W. L. Margard officiated for the double ring ceremony.

Miss Will is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Will, Crestline, and Mr. Parr, Corbin, Kentucky, is the son of Mrs. Mollie Parr, Tulsa, Oklahora.

A program of music preceded the ceremony with Mrs. M. V. Snyder at the organ. Paul Furry was the soloist.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father. She wore a lovely gown of white slipper satin, fashioned with a basque waist and boat neckline. The long sleeves came to points over the hands. The yoke was of marquisette edged with insert sheering which also encircled the hip line. The hoop skirt fell into a long train. The bride's colonial bridal hat was of matching satin. It was tied under the chin and attached to a fingertip veil. The only jewelry worn by Miss Will was a single strand of pearls.

The bridal bouquet was of white gardenias and talisman roses—made in a semi-colonial arrangement.

Mrs. Howard Delventhal of Napoleon was the matron of honor. She wore a gown of yellow silk crepe made with a square neckline, cap sleeves and a bustle back. She wore mitts and a floral headpiece to match her dress. Judy Muntis was the flower girl and was attired in a blue silk taffeta colonial gown with a white lace trim and tiny pink bows at the neckline. She wore a blue taffeta colonial hat which tied under the chin.

The matron of honor carried a bouquet of yellow and white pom poms. The flower girl carried pink sweetpeas.

Mrs. Will chose a grey print dress for her daughter's wedding. She wore black accessories with her outfit. Mrs. Will's corsage was of pink rosebuds.

Harold Delventhal, Napoleon, served as best man.

The guests were ushered to their pews by Joseph Wills, brother of the bride, and David Malaby of Crestline.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's aunt, Miss Emma Winters, 340 North Pearl street, for 100 friends and relatives. The serving table was centered with a four-tiered cake decorated with rosebuds and topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom. The cake was surrounded with white gardenias. White lighted tapers in double crystal holders were placed at either end of the table.

When the couple left for their honeymoon to an undisclosed destination, the bride wore a brown suit with brown accessories topped with a green coat. She had a corsage of gardenias and roses. The couple will be at home in Corbin.

The bride graduated from Crestline high school and the Flower hospital in Toledo. The bridegroom is a graduate of the Tulsa high school, Tulsa, Oklahoma, and the University of Oklahoma. He is employed by the Sexton Food company as a commercial salesman, working out of Chicago.

Out-of-town guests present at the wedding were from Toledo, Detroit, Napoleon, Shelby, Tiro and Galion.

Horoscope

For Tuesday, January 11
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

A DIFFICULT and complicated day may tax the ingenuity and sound judgment, especially in a dangerous impasse, in which the feelings and emotions might urge to strange adventures, disruption, separations or estrangements. These affect business as well as purely personal relations, in which the totally unexpected may arise for quick decision. While there may be delays, disappointments and stubborn obstacles to thwart and annoy, yet honest and forthright attack might prove of unexpected benefit. Prompt and direct action may win out.

For the Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may run into a year to tax the good judgment, skill and sound technique in a difficult or stagnant situation, holding threat of disruption, delays, estrangements, with feelings and emotions running away with good judgment. The romantic or intellectual life may prove devastating, erratic, with strife, loss or sorrow to pay penalty for rash or tumultuous conduct.

Speculation Continues On Suicide

Hitler's Aides Still Doubtful

BERLIN, — (AP) — Hitler's valet, his personal pilot and his aide claim they are unable to confirm the Feuhrer's reported suicide death in his Berlin bunker.

All three men have been seen in Soviet Russia and asked about it. The information comes from Major General Walter Schreiber, surgeon general of the Werhrmacht, who was a prisoner of the Russians for six years.

Schreiber was indoctrinated for a communist-dominated job under the Russians in Germany. He came here under a pretense of accepting it and fled at the first opportunity.

The general told American interrogators he had tried often to pick up information about Hitler's death, but never had any success even though he spoke with men that should have—or would have—known about it.

Schreiber was captured in Berlin April 29, 1945 by Russian soldiers who overran an underground field hospital near the Reichstag. He was taken to the Soviet prisoner pen at Strausberg.

There, he says, he met Colonel Guentsche, SS aide to Hitler who was captured in the Fuehrer's own bunker. He asked if Hitler was alive or dead, and Guentsche replied: "I did not see the dead fuehrer."

Asked about suicide, Guentsche said: "Yhose things were all done without us.' A Russian interrogator told Schreiber once that Guentsche now is in Lublyanka prison in Moscow.

Schreiber later saw Brigade Fuehrer Mohnke, who was on duty in the Reichschancellory bunker. He said the SS officer had an "arrogant attitude" and "refused to give any information."

In the same prison camp he met Hitler's pilot, Bauer, who was wounded in the leg while making a sortie from the bunker with some SS men. Bauer told him he did not see Hitler dead, but that he knew Martin Bormann, Deputy Fuehrer still missing, had embarked on an escape attempt.

Later at another prisoner camp in Posen Schreiber ran into Hitler's personal valet, Linge, who also was chief of the Fuehrer's household staff. Linge told him he did not see Hitler, but toward the end noticed two bodies wrapped in carpets being carried out of the bunker.

Everybody believed they were Hitler and Eva Braun, but nobody knew surely. Linge said he was told that only later.

Schreiber himself has no opinion about the mystery of Hitler and Eva Braun, one way or the other. He was in the bunker only once and that was after hostilities ceased. Along with other German generals, he was brought there May 5, 1945 by the Russians to stage surrender pictures.

See Barkley Slicing Veil of Anonymity From Role

By JOHN F. SEMBOWER
Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGON, D. C. — Can shrewd, able 71-year-old Alben W. Barkley make the vice-presidency amount to something at last?

Curiosity and speculation over that question gives unusual interest to his induction into office in January, and for once that part of the inauguration may not be lost completely in the hullabaloo surrounding the swearing-in of the President himself.

Followers of the 35-year congressional career of the man who is giving up his cherished Kentucky senatorial seat for the doubtful distinction of holding the strange No. 2 post in the national government believe that if anyone can rise above the traditional oblivion that surrounds the vice-presidency, it will be Barkley.

They acknowledge that it is a terrific assignment for a vice-president to play an active [illegible] in public affairs, and one which has triumphed over many outstanding men.

However, Barkley is determined that it shall not be an anti-climax to his lengthy public life, and the situation seems cut out for him to be the exception to a long and established rule of vice-presidential anonymity.

Apparently "the forgotten man" of the founding fathers when they drafted the Constitution and cast the mould for the executive branch, the vice-president received so little consideration that even the manner of his selection had to be revamped by an early amendment.

While the duties of president were spelled out in some detail, hardly a word was said about what the vice-president should do. It has been called the biggest oversight in the original conception of our government.

Although the man is separated from the White House by a single missed heartbeat of the president the challenge of the office has seemed so limited that psychologically it can be a blight on the career of an active and ambitious public figure unless he has Barkley's plans.

Theodore Roosevelt, who never forgave that he would succeed to the presidency upon McKinley's assassination, branded his nomination for vice-president as the cruelest blow of his political enemies.

John Adams, the first vice-president said it was "the most insignificant office that the invention of man ever contrived."

One vice-president, John C. Calhoun, actually resigned so that he could be appointed to a vacancy in the Senate over which he had presided as he occupied the standby post.

Officially, Barkley has no more to do than his unhappy predecessors. He will preside over the Senate and vote only in case of a tie. His famous oratory will be stilled, for his voice now will entone only the anouncement of Senate committees picked by the party leaders.

Even his duties of presiding are considerably reduced by the fact that the Senate is notably decorous, and not nearly as lively as the House of Representatives, whose speaker must be a vigorous parliamentarian.

Since it probably would be "cruel and inhuman punishment," for any one man to have to listen to the drone of all the speeches, the Senate thoughtfully elects a president pro tem to relieve him, and numerous senators will take their turn in the quiet presiding chair.

Administratively his only set uty is to be a regent for the Smithsonian Institution. Some presidents invite the vice-president to sit in on Cabinet meetings, but it is not mandatory to do so.

Unofficially, the new vice-president has no special commitments in his favor, not even of the sort that Governor Warren is said to have elicited from GOP leaders before he consented to run with Dewey. It is reported that Warren was to discharge an active administrative role, perhaps as a move in the direction of setting up several "administrative vice presidents" as some students of government propose.

However, in spite of all these handicaps, the odds seem to favor Barkley demonstrating that the vice-presidency need not be so insignificant. His vigorous, amiable personality, and his unparalleled knowledge of congressional affairs are counted on to make the difference.

SERVES AS LINK

It will devolve upon Barkley, say the observers, to link the executive and legislative branches of the government in an effective program that will keep President Truman's favorite campaign issue, the 80th Congress, from boomeranging. He will marshal "the Truman legislative program."

Settling into this role, Barkley speaks like a football coach sizing up his material prior to the season. He sees some good holdover veterans to fill congressional backfield and line positions, some up-and-coming freshmen elected in November, and promising quarterbacks and field generals in Senators Scott Lucas and J. Howard McGrath.

Barkley has seen enough of Congress to know that as unofficial director of this program, he might be more strategically located in his old post as majority leader, but in effect he says that the vice-presidency should not be too much of a handicap.

Probably he has in mind the dismal outcome of some past efforts by vice-presidents to be more than nonentities. Charles E. Dawes was rewarded with the post after he won acclaim as a government reorganizer as director of the budget, but when he undertook parliamentary reforms in the Senate, the offended and shocked solons promptly relegated him to a role as wallflower.

John Nance Garner, who wielded a whiphand over the House as speaker, was cast in something like Barkley's role when he was Franklin D. Roosevelt's first vice-president, but his lack of sympathy with the New Deal caused his retreat into inactivity.

Even Mr. Truman had hopes of being more than a figurehead as vice-president after his activity as chairman of the war investigating committee, but when summoned to the White House to take the oath upon Roosevelt's death, he revealed he was pretty much out of touch with top level affairs.

A TOUGH JOB

So Barkley's job will not be easy, and one of his biggest assets may be his apparent recognition that he knows where he stands. He knows also that as administrative liaison man with the Senate, he must tread carefully, for he himself blew his top over White House domination and broke temporarily with F.D.R. over his veto of a tax bill, setting the stage for the famous "Dear Alben" letter calling him back to the majority leadership.

Barkley's big office at the front of the Senate Office building now will be even more of a gathering place for his colleagues than was his former suite which was famous for its warm "Kentucky Colonel" hospitality.

Freedom from the myriad managerial tasks of a floor leader will enable him to work effectively in the many informal gatherings in the corridors and cloakrooms where so much of the Senate's real business is conducted.

Fortified with experience, tact, and an enormous understanding of complex modern government, Alben W. Barkley may be just the man to make the country aware of the vice-presidency at last, and perhaps even make it wonder how the nation got along without any vice-president at all during the last three years.

Fliers Describe Trip Over Lava-Spouting Ma'una Loa

By WILLIAM COUGHLIN

HONOLULU, — (UP) — Our flying fortress—"The Eleventh Wonder"—raced 400 feet above the boiling inferno of Mauna Loa crater Saturday as fountains of lava gushed hundreds of feet into the air, lighting the inside of the plane with a fiery glow.

Aleaping ribbon of lava gushed down the mountainside below, moving swiftly toward the Kona coast, 20 miles beyond the tip of the river of molten rock. The river itself was 20 miles long and growing by the minute. Another tongue of lava was licking from a crack in the crated rim five miles toward Hilo.

Our plane was rocked by hot air currents as we circled the flaming hell. We could feel the heat in the cockpit and when we removed our oxygen masks for a moment, the acrid fumes burned our nostrils.

Along the north-south crack scores of geysers spourted into the air like broken water mains. From the crack in the craters side, molten rock shot forth as though from some mammoth flood gate.

The main lava stream down the west side was moving about five miles an hour at the tip, creeping toward the tiny village of Honaunau. In other places, the molten rock was leaping like a mountain stream.

At several places the lava river split into two or more ribbons. Its sullen glow was visible 35 miles away over Diamond Head as we winged our way toward the crater.

As we droned through the midnight sky, the glow gradually increased until it paled the bright halfmoon in the west. A weird glow filled the plane like orange daylight.

Our pilot, Capt. Hal Goddlad, Los Angeles, summed up the feelings of everyone aboard when he said:

"We'll never see anything like this again in our lifetimes.

Sgt. Stanley Koenig, Greeley, Colo., flight engineer, recalled that there was a sheet of ice over the lake in the crater when he flew over it two days ago.

"I saw the last two eruptions, he said. "This one is by far the most tremendous.

Reds Near Success In New Reich

Pravda Outlines German Course

BERLIN, — (AP) — You have to read Pravda to get the lowdown on the politics of eastern Germany.

In Pravda's terminology, a people's democracy is a country where a communist minority is in the saddle, riding the masses toward the goal of a Stalinist state.

That's the future marked out for Russian-occupied Germany.

Communists as yet don't have the one-party system, but they are working for it. They need no reminder such a system requires a formidable police force. They are building one.

All along the line, German communism is speeding up its program, spurred on by the cold war between east and west.

The Soviet occupation zone has one-third of the population and land of defeated Germany. Russian officers administer it according to rigid directives from Moscow.

But if the Soviet army were to leave tomorrow, German communists could take over without a hitch.

The rise of a tiny Red minority to domination over the governments of five German provinces surrounding Berlin is a thing of Stalinist beauty. It's been done with just a little police terror. The mere sight of Russian uniforms has choked off many anti-communist protests.

Communists have side-tracked majority rule in the provinces of Mecklenburg, Brandenburg, Saxony-Anhalt, Saxony and Thuringia.

To subdue political competition, the communists used a familiar strategem. They rigged a merger with the vote-heavy Social Democratic party. The result was the Socialist Unity party. Its policies are 100 per cent communist. The Social Democrats have to say yes or shut up.

But communists tacitly admit many adult Germans are impossible to convert. To let them blow off political steam, frightened remnants of the Christian Democratic and Liberal Democratic parties still function.

As a catch-all for stragglers, communists helped two more parties get organized---the National Democrats and the Farmers' Union. The more splinter parties the better, is the communist view, until the time is ripe for only one party.

River Yields Body

AKRON—(AP)—The body of a man identified by police as Joseph Wolf, 58, was found yesterday in the Little Cuyahoga river. Police said there was no home address on papers in his pocket.

In a single day, New York City uses more than one billion gallons of water and 23,500 tons of food.

Raging Flames Fatal to Four

EVERETT, Wash. —(AP)— An oil-fed fire raced through a two-family home at nearby Lake Stevens yesterday, taking the lives of a 19-year-old mother and her three small children.

Four other persons escaped, although two are in serious condition.

Fatally burned were Mrs. Jean Miller and the Miller children, Garry, 3; Jerry, 14 months, and Judy, two months.

Sheriff Tom Warnock said the fire was set off by an exploding oil stove.
